CORBETT TELLS HOW HE DID IT.

The Champion Failed to Follow His Original Plan—He Bears No Malice Towards Mitchell.

James J. Corbett, the champion pugilist, according to arrangement wired The New York World his story of the battle as follows:

The fight to-day was different from my other fights, in that my whole plan of battle was completely altered during the fight, something which has never occurred to me before. I had fully made up my mind to make the Mitchell fight a long one.

I did this for many reasons. Among others, I was so confident of ultimate victory that I did not wish to jeopardize anything by rushing in a long fight I knew that I had nothing to fear.

When I got into the ring, however, and saw Mitchell I felt for a moment so sore and mad—I was the first time we had met since the trouble at Minea's Theatre—that for a time I forgot utterly my previous resolution. I managed with a strong effort to restrain myself somewhat during the first round. In that round, while the fighting was sharp, I was not hurt much, while I think Mitchell's knock-out was hastened by blows that he received then.

At the end of the first round I was even more confident, if possible, than when I went in. Mitchell had done his worst, and I did not think it possible for him to continue the fight as he was going. In addition, his blows were not dangerous.

In the second round I got in one good blow on him, and from that look on his face I knew that he was badly hurt. I then determined to finish him up quick.

The feeling came on me in a moment and before I knew it I was hammering away desperately—doing what I had never attempted to do in any of my previous fights—to knock my man out in a hurry.

When Mitchell fell in the second round and I started to knock him there were cries of "Foul! Foul!"

Those who uttered the cries were not familiar with the rules governing the kind of blows that were permitted. When a man is down on his hands and knees it is a foul if you hit him. As soon, however, as both knees and hands are on the ground it is perfectly proper to strike. You must get back 10 feet, however, and you are then as good as a new man.

Mitchell was half dazed and very groggy, and I was able to give him a good beating. I have given him any opportunity to recuperate.

The only speak of my rights in the case, however, in reality I did not hit Mitchell. I did not even touch him. There was so much confusion, so much yelling and cheering, and I was so quickly hustled away by my seconds, that I did not have an opportunity to follow up my original plan. As a result it is probably just as well that I did not, for it might have led to a long controversy.

The only foul that was committed was when Mitchell came over to my corner and rapped me over the back of the head. I knew what had happened.

After the second round I knew Mitchell was gone. In the third round he was almost helpless.

In conclusion, I will say that Mitchell met me after the fight and spoke in a manly, straightforward way. I bear him no malice for anything that may have occurred between us, and I wish him only prosperity for the future. In his battle to-day he was a game and honest fighter.

The Knock-Out Blow.

In the third round, after Mitchell had been floored, the referee stood between the combatants and Mitchell and Corbett and when the former struggled to get up, he was so quickly hustled away by the champion's view, calling his attention to the fact that the Englishman was in a shabby attitude. Corbett leaped from his seat and with a bound fell at Mitchell.

The latter was 15 feet away, dizzily leaning up against the ropes. Corbett came at him with a right hand, which was brought down swing which next was brought into play and a full minute.

The added momentum of Corbett's own running weight was lent to the blow and when it landed it fell squarely on the point of the jaw. Mitchell fell full forward on his breast, his lower jaw dropped, his left hand fell limply to his side, his right falling under his body in the descent. His body reached the floor face downward, and he lay there as helpless as one dead.

There was not one chance in a thousand that he would recover inside the prescribed ten seconds. His hands were slightly to the right of his head, his mouth and nostrils oozed the blood in tiny streams. Kelly had counted the 10 seconds and I was so quick in my deliberation about the matter there was much of mercy.

When the time had finally run its limit I stepped to the point of the jaw towards Corbett's corner, shouted, "Corbett wins," at the same time beckoning the seconds of Mitchell to their man.

No Sympathy From Home.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The newspapers here, in their comments on the prize fight in Florida yesterday, express no sympathy with Mitchell in his defeat.

Evening Standard: The fight was a peculiarly dirty example of a dirty business. Sportsman, there was no serious damage advantage if the result of the fight takes the form of a sound and unbecoming out of Mitchell.

St. James Gazette: The modern prize-fighter should be a man of letters, a man who wears dress clothes, drink champagne and converse with sporting reporters. Three rounds was rather a long time for the man to fight.

The Star: Now that Corbett has pricked the Mitchell bubble we will probably hear less that cowardly whiff for a time. Mitchell should reserve himself for old men in the future. This is the safer department of boxing.

Ring Side Toss.

Peter Jackson says he will fight Corbett in June next.

The Duval Club's purse of $20,000 in hard cash was handed over to Corbett at 9 p.m. Thursday.

Mitchell weighed 158 pounds and Corbett 184 when they entered the ring. Each pair of gloves weighed 6 1/2 ounces.

Jim Corbett was in a week's engagement at Boston next Monday night. A number of first-class variety performers are being engaged to travel with him through the country.

GUINANE BROS., BUILDING SALE.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Collings of Their Building to Be Razed—A Shoe House Where You Can Get Every Kind of Boots, shoes, slippers, Over shoes and Rubbers Manufactured.

The public have responded to our desire to save their money rather than ours we anticipated. These goods are going at a lively rate, and we fully expect to be able to start at the front of our building next week. The colling must be raised, but there are too many thousands of dollars' worth of goods piled on the floors above to attempt it. To our big customers and to the general public we would say: The liberal patronage you have given us shows the unshaken confidence you have in our venture and is more than ample return for the sacrifice of goods we are compelled to make. We are trying to show our appreciation of that confidence; we are now working for your accommodation and we want to give you a shoe house in the proper sense of the word. A place where you can get every kind of boots and shoes manufactured. We want to make it your shoe house, not ours, and instead of coming to GUINANE BROS., 214 YONGE-STREET, in hundreds you will come in thousands. Therefore, we are building you a shoe house such that each of the five floors will be larger than any retail shoe store in the west and are compelled to sacrifice thousands of dollars' worth of fall and winter goods in order to hurry on with our building, deterring us that instead of moving the goods off the premises we will let out loss by your gain. The following will give an idea of what we are doing towards clearing off our stock: Ladies' Caico kid hand-sewed buttoned boots, $1.50 square toe and in four widths, A, B, C and D, regular price $2.00 we offer for $1.50. Ladies' French kid buttoned boots (Grey Brox, Syracuse) in opera, common sense, London, French or St. Louis square toe, hand-sewed extension soles, regular $4.00, we have reduced to $2.50. All our $3, $4, and $5 lines, manufactured by the best makers in Canada and the States, will sell off at half the original price. In cheaper grades we will offer ladies' slippers at low 10c pair. Ladies' kid buttoned boots, silk-worked holes, at 60c a pair. In gent's line boots and shoes we have cut prices in half; $5 boots reduced to $2.50; $4 boots reduced to $2, and $2.50 boots and shoes reduced to $1.25. The cheaper grades of strong working boots reduced from $1.25 to 80c.
