NIAGARA CAMP.

THE work this year has been one of great encouragement. So far as outward surroundings were concerned the work was more trying upon our brethren who labored in the Camp, owing to the very wet weather which continued with little intermission during the twelve days. But if showers of rain descended, there were also showers of blessing, and many, very many, have reason to bless God for the visit to Niagara. In our last number we published short extracts from the worker's letters.

We now give additional items furnished since then.

June 29, 1883.

There have been over 650 letters written in the tent up to present date. The men seem to appreciate all we have
