MR. JOHN CHARLTON, M.P.

Mr. JOHN CHARLTON'S character is well indicated by his physical build. He is of that square order of architecture morally. For many years he has held a seat in the Canadian Parliament, and by general consent, the House does not contain a better man. Intellectually he is entitled to a place in the front row of the Opposition, and at least on one subject—that of the lumber interests of the country—he probably knows more than any other member. He is an excellent speaker, with a manner notably free from the bitterness which characterizes most strong party men. As a legislator his name is chiefly associated with measures in the direction of moral reform and the better observance of the Sabbath, all of which is highly becoming in a stalwart elder of the Kirk. On the trade question, Mr. Charlton is a friend of freedom, though he doesn't speak out as boldly as we would like. He has too tender a regard for the feelings of his leaders. As to the future destiny of Canada Mr. Charlton lately intimated that his mind was in a condition of painful suspense. "If the present corrupt state of things goes on for ten years longer," said he, "I'm inclined to think Canada won't have any destiny to bother about."
