Rival Armies Race to See Which Gets to Mukden First Kuropatkin's Rear-Guard Annihilated, Main Army in Danger of Being Surrounded

St. Petersburg, Sept. 6.—It is reported at an early hour this morning that Gen. Kuropatkin's rear guard has been almost annihilated, and that the main Russian army is in imminent danger of being surrounded. The Russian losses during the fighting at Liaoyang are placed at 16,000. Kuropatkin in his flight was forced to abandon 200 guns. The race to Mukden goes

Whole Campaign With Southern Manchurla and the Further Retrest to the Fortress at Harbin, But the Japs May Cut Kuropatkin

The forces of Kuropatkin and Oyams are racing for Mukden. This much stands out in the news of Monday and it is indicated in a report for varded by Kuropatkin, who says in perfect order, the the Japanese on Sunday repeatedly attacked his rear and continued the attack until Monday. The result of the race is Monday. The result of the race is in doubt. The united Russian forces are now north of Yentai, a station on the railway about ten miles northeast of Liaoyang. They are pushing on to Mukden, to which the bulk of the Japanese forces is marching direct, after naving swarmed across the Taitse River. A strong Japanese flanking column is about thirty miles northeast of Liaoyang, and is trying to get between the Russian forces and Muk-Mukden, saying that preparations Mukden, saying that preparations for the evacuation of that place are for the evacuation of that place are proceedings. This report, if well founded, as pointed out in the Associated Press St. Petersburg destated Press St. Petersburg despatches, would mean the abandonment of the whole of southern Manment of Mukden must quickly ensue. Kuropatkin, either on the way to Mukden or in the neighborhood of Mukden itself. The fate of Gen. Kuropatkin's force depends, say the English observers, upon the Russian general's ability to confine these efforts to rear-guard actions.

The Daily Telegraph believes that the critical moment of the retreat is likely to be reached when Gen. Kuropatkin arrives at the Hun River, south of Mukden.

Once across this serious obstacle, the Russian forces will be in sufficient to the series of t

It is against this movement that Kuronatkin has deepatched Lieut. that Kuropatkin has despatched Lieut.Gen. Rennekampf with a strong Cossack division, which, it is believed, is already blocking the eastern high road.
Kuropatkin has three roads over which he is marching towards Mukden besides the double tracked wall. which he is marching towards Mukden, besides the double-tracked railway. Gen. Kuropatkin, in a telegram to the general staff, filed at 1 p·m., Sept. 5, at Yentai, says the Japanese on Sunday engaged his rear guard south of Yentai, the fight continuing until Monday.

The telegram details the precautions taken to checkmate the Japanese flank-

Kuropatkin estimates his losses up to and including Sept. 4, at 16,000. This is considered to be a conservative figure. The loss to the Japanese probably will be double this number, owmg to their position as attackers.

Kuropatkin says nothing regarding the loss of guns, but it is probable that some of the heavier emplaced guns at Liaoyang had to be abandon-

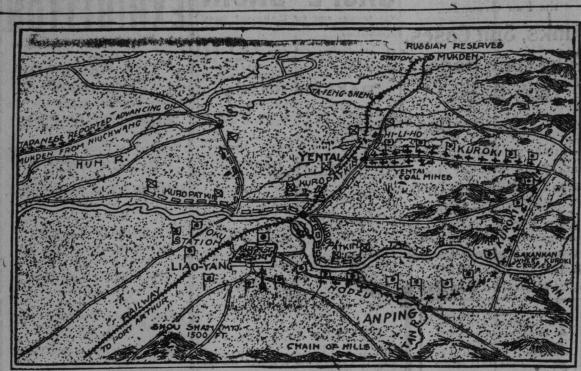

There is no truth either in the report that Gen. Kuropatkin has been wounded, or that Lieut.-Gen. Linevitch is moving to his support.

Gen. Linevitch is still at Vladivo-

Kuroki for Mukden enthralls the British press and public. The best opinion inclines to the belief that Kuropatkin will got thru with a respectable remnant of his great army, thus robbing hant of his great army, thus robbing the Japanese of the complete fruits of their victory, but it is realized that the Russians will not be out of the woods for several days. The latest report is that Gen. Kuropatkin is once more in danger of being cut off, and it is believed here too likely that this report will be repeated several times before the sanguinary struggle is decided.

RETREAT CUT OFF.

London, Sept. 6.—The Daily Mail this morning prints a despatch from Sinmintin, dated Sept. 5, giving a report that Gen. Kuropatkin's retreat has been cut off. The despatch goes on to say that the Russian troops had advanced in strong force to the southeast of Mukden as far as Taping Hill to oppose any possible attack in the direction of their advance. A Chinese official, who arrived from Mukden Sunday, says that the Russian troops are leaving for the north, that there are 18,000 men to the east of the city, that the officers and men have become dispirited and that much sickness prevails.

The war situation to date is:

The whole Russian army, or at least the main portion of it, is already above Yentai station, and is pushing on toward Mukden.

The whole of Field Marshal Oyama's army had crossed the Taitse River, and part of it is hanging on to Kuropatkin's flank.

A strong flanking column on the east is pushing rapidly north, in the effort to head off the Russian's.

Against this column Kuropatkin has sent out a strong cavalry division to the northeast, which, it is believed, is already in position to check the Japanese flankers, while to the westward Kuropatkin is moving a division to twards Sinminitin, 30 miles west of Mukden, to meet any interference that may be attempted from the direction of Yinkow or Newchwang.

Oyama's advance is reported to be engaging the Russian rear, but it is not expected to develop anything more resistant than a series of rear guard.

ON TO HARBIN NOW.

This Seems to Be the Russians Last Hope.

It is impossible at this hour to obtain any statement from the authorities regarding the reported preparations for the abandonment of Mukden.

This is the first intimation that such a course is contemplated. If it turns out to be true it means the abandonment of the whole of Southern Manchuria and the winding up of the Manchuria and the winding up of the present campaign.

In fact, should Mukden be evacuated, there would be no point for wintering the army of a quarter of a million with its many wounded, short of Haron the other hand, the evacuation of Mukden would give Field Marshal Oyama commodious winter quarters and the practical control of two lines of railway. The Kinchau-Simmintin line, tapping rich Chinese territory, stops little short of Mukden, with which it is connected by a good wagon road. The report of the prospective evacuation of Mukden, if well founded, would indicate that the crippling effect of Liaoyang fight on Kuropatkin's army
