street, owing to the popular desire. The procession had just passed through Mayer street and was about to turn into the Esplanada, leading to the palace, when an explosion shook the buildings in the vicinity, stunning a large number of people and throwing the cortege into inextricable confusion. The royal coach was brought to a sudden stop by the shock, officers and 494 soldiers of the escort failing to the ground about the equerry and horses that had been killed. The screams of the terrified multitude mingled with the groans of the dying. It was immediately seen that the royal coach was intact, except that it had been damaged by flying splinters. King Alfonso immediately alighted, Thorold, June 1.—Three ladies visit- and assisted Queen Victoria out of the
