William Northey, 306 York Street, Wounded-Assailant Has Female Companion.

William Northey, 306 York street, was attacked by a hold-up man in from his residence at 7:30 o'clock last night, while a female companion of the assailant stood by and watched proceedings. When Northey's mother came to the door, after she had been alarmed by sounds of a scuffle in front of the house, the girl fled towards the business district, followed soon the business district, followed soon afterwards by the hold-up man. The victim of the attack put up a hard fight, it is said.

At the time of the assault the victim was returning home after visiting some maintheau living in a hard some living the living in a hard some living the living in a hard some living the living was returning nome after visiting some neighbors living in a house at the rear of his home. When but a short dis-tance from the street the stranger ap-proached him and struck him about the face. He received a clean cut across the nose, one above the eye, and some bruises on his forehead. All the wounds are believed to have been inwounds are beligwed to have been in-flicted with a weapon of some kind. The attacked did not succeed in get-ting any of Northey's money. His blows were so effective, however, that the injured man required medical attention. Later Northey had to go to bed.

According to Mrs. Northey, the stranger was of a medium complexion, about 5 feet 6 inches in height, wore a light brown suit, which had one sleeve torn, a brown fedora, and did not have any overcoat. His female friend wore a snuff-colored coat trimmed with black fur, a small black hat, and was dark.

The police were notified, but no trace of the pair had been found up to late today.

Courthouse officials declined to say this morning whether Strong is taking any further interest in the dispute between the officials and a local paper as to who was to blame for Strong's escape. It could not be ascertained whether Monday's issue of the local paper so much concerned in the matter had been shown to Strong. The reproduction in the paper of the signatures to the two letters of disputed authorship, together with the finding of unnamed handwriting experts, might have interested Mr. Strong, but it was quietly intimated that Strong wasn't giving out interviews to the newspapers today, and, besides, the matter was all over. Apparently it had been "settled out of court," so to speak, between the courtcourt," so to speak, between the court-house officials and the local paper.

The question of a jail farm for Mid-dlesex County will not down. It is claimed by advocates of the scheme that escapes of prisoners from such an institution would not necessarily be any institution would not necessarily be any greater in number than escapes from regularly-conducted, good old-fashioned, orthodox jalls at the present time. Besides, the contention is advanced, prisoners would be more contented to work on a farm or in some other industrial institution where fair wages would be paid them for the benefit of their families. ies. Charles Talbot, county engineer, look-

Charles Talbot, county engineer, looking at the matter from a humanitarian standpoint rather than merely from the question of efficiency in management of penal institutions, is a strong advocate of some system of handling prisoners so that their families will not be left to starve while the breadwinners are comfortably housed in jall.

According to Mr. Talbot, prisoners should work on farms or in some other industrial enterprise, road-building for instance, at rates of wages equal to union or standard wage scales, minus the actual cost of paying guards to watch them.

Through the long, dreary winter from watch them. Through the long, dreary winter from the windows of the county buildings one may see calling at the court house to visit prisoners the wives and children, faint and sickly from lack of nourishment, sometimes actual starvation. Something should be done, claims Mr. Taibot, to remedy the state of affairs under which society houses and feeds the lawbreaker and leaves his dependent family to face starvation or beg upon the streets.

DECLARE A TRUCE London, Nov. 25 .- Disapproval of the present system of present system of government in fre-land was expressed in a letter written by Leonard Wilde, who was shot and killed in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, on Sunday, which was received by Arthur Henderson, Labor leader in the House of Commons, yesterday. Wilde asked, Mr. Henderson's advice as to the "bat method of conservating my life" to the Mr. Henderson's advice as to the "bat method of consecrating my life" to the cause of real democracy in Ireland. Wilde wrote that his observation had led him to believe Ireland never could be coerced, and suggested his knowledge of Irish history might make him a valuable worker in the Labor party in that organization's fight on behalf of Ireland. land.

The parliamentary Labor party's commission, which was charged with an investigation of reprisals in Ireland, and which planned to leave for Ireland on which planned to leave for fream on Tuesday, has postponed its trip tem-porarily because of the present situation on the island. At a meeting of the Labor party yesterday resolutions were passed expressing "deep sorrow" over recent agsassinations, and asking both sides to FIVE WERE KILLED. Belfast, Nov. 23.—The death roll in Dublin yesterday totalled five persons. During the morning one of the sentries at the castle was attacked by armed men. The sentry fired, killing three of the attacking party. Two other deaths occurred during the raids which were carried out in the city through the day.

ONE POLICEMAN WOUNDED. Cork. Nov. 23 .- Shots were fired last vening between auxiliary police and evening between auxiliary police and civilians in the village of Millstreet, in the Killarney district. It is reported one policeman was wounded and twe civilians shot. After some rifle and machine-gun firing from the police barracks the trouble subsided. PRISONERS ATTEMPTED ESCAPE. Dublin, Nov. 23.—The Dublin Even-ing Mail today published news of a sensational incident which is alleged to have ocurred vesterday morning in the exchange court, resulting in the death exchange court, resulting in the death of Richard McPee, Peter Clancy and a man named McCalune. These men, according to the new-spaper, were arrested during the week-end and kept in a room of the exchange end and kept in a room of the exchange court, pending transfer of the prisoners. The Mail alleges that the prisoners seized arms stored in the court and attempted to escape. It also alleges the court guard was fired on, and, returning the fire, killed the three men.

Clancy, it is said, was a member of the Sinn Fein "inner circle," which has been directing recent operations of the organization. McFee was an expert on explosives and McCalune is said to have been an officer of the republican army.

The policeman claimed that the man with whom she was staying threw house. The policeman claimed that the man with whom she was staying threw her out the door because she was swearing. The house was so near the street that she landed on public property. The magistrate believed the policeman's story. He gave her a scathing lecture, for it was her second offence in a short period of time. The next time she appears he promised that he would give her a jail sentence instead of the $10 fine. Two other drunks were assessed the usual $10.

field, manager of the company, stated that the company intended to ask permission to increase the price from 90 cents to $1.40 a thousand feet. Unless this rate is allowed it will be necessary to close the plant, he claims. If it is allowed, the present system of service charges will be dispensed with. Ald Cunningham said that while the council had on official rights in connection with gas prices, it should protect the citizens. If the increase being asked was considered too high then representations to that effect could be made to the government.

A recommendation along this line could be made by the present council to the incoming council, he believes. The matter is not likely to be a live issue until that time, when the Legislature will be in session.
