WHEN BUYING FURS

The instructions an experienced shopper will give you when purchasing furs would be to buy the best you can afford from a furrier whom you can trust.

This matter of buying furs is like buying diamonds. Good furs have a standard value the same as diamonds. Cheap diamonds are dear at any price. What you must avoid is being "flim-flammed" into paying a high price for a poor article.

Our guarantee goes with everything we sell. We accept no second place when it comes to being classed as expert judges of good fur. Our big business has been built up on the confidence the public has extended to us, and in our "delivering the goods."

Here's a list of suitable Xmas gifts:

WESTON. Westonites Pack Hall to Hear Dis-

WESTON, Nov. 29.—Judging from the crowds that filled the town hall tonight, the people of Weston are ever on the alert when a meeting is called to protest against any action of the council that may seem to be in opposition to the welfare of the municipality. tion to the welfare of the municipality. The meeting was representative, and was attended by Reeve Irwin and members of the council. These speakers offered protests against the council's action in passing the bylaw: John Middlebrook, A. Mallaby, Henry Pearson, R. J. Bull, S. M. Lyons, J. K. Keefler, W. Wilby, J. Eagle, H. Cousins, J. Gardhouse and J. Barton. Score the Council

The trend of the arguments was that the council had represented the Stark bylaw as a good one, without even calling a public meeting to explain to the townspeople what it consisted of. For townspeople what it consisted of. For the present year the maintenance of the plant has cost $2400, with $2000 for debentures, and in return for this the town has derived, it is said, a revenue of $3300. These profits have now been confiscated, and all the town will receive will be $1500 rental from the Stark T., L. & P. system. One speaker declared that last year the council were in favor of the hydro-electric power comclared that last year the council were in favor of the hydro-electric power com-mission, and row that son took in charge the three child-ren of Wm. Brennan, York Mins, yes-Reeve Well Received.

Reeve Irwin when called upon to explain matters, was received with applause. He stated that the bylaw had been published in some of the newspapers, but was so twisted that its original appearance was almost lost sight of. He maintained that the council were acting in the best interests of the municipality, and stated that one of the engineers of the hydro-electric power commission had advised him to accept the contract with the Stark system.
