COLLAPSED IN COURT ROOM

Man Charged With Making Trouble Last Night in Wellington Row.

As a result of trying to force an entrance into the G. W. V. A. rooms in Wellington row last evening Joseph Wallace appeared in the police court this morning charged with drunkenness and assault. During the progress of the case Wallace collapsed and had to be carried from the court room.

Harry Cannon said that he was the caretaker at the G. W. V. A. headquarters and that last evening he had seen Wallace at the door very much intoxicated. He had told him that he could not enter and the accused had gone away but had returned a while later. The witness then had advised him to go home and have a sleep. He had taken the accused by the arm and arms and in the tussle they had arrived at the bottom of the steps. The accused had struck the witness in the eye and loosened some of his upper teeth. The matter had been reported to the police.

James Fitzpatrick, doorkeeper at the G. W. V. A. rooms, corroborated the previous evidence. He said he ordered Wallace to allow no one, member or non-member, into the building if he was under the influence of liquor. For that reason he had refused to allow the accused to enter. He said the accused was not a member of the association.

Ralph Ganong, chairman of the house committee of the G. W. V. A., said that he had gone into the building about nine o'clock last evening and that the doorkeeper had complained that a man was causing trouble. He had investigated. The accused had used very bad language and he had been forced to send for the police. It was the intention of the association to take any necessary steps to prevent drunkenness and rowdiness in the building even if it were necessary to enlist the aid of the police.

The accused was remanded.
