MORNING NEWS OVER THE WIRE

The Moncton Gas Co. is to supply natural gas to steam boilers at fifteen cents a thousand feet, gas engines, twenty cents, and domestic purposes, thirty-eight cents. James R. Russell, keeper of the light and fog alarm at Grinnons Island, Albert county, has been dismissed by the Conservative government, and his place given to Egbert C. Peck. The trouble with Mr. Russell was that he was a Liberal.

Harris Zeitz, aged twenty-eight, committed suicide yesterday in a cell in the jail at Lunenburg, N. S., by hanging himself with his suspenders. He had been arrested on drunkenness charge and while in jail outsiders gave him more liquor.

Miss Rose Edmunds, sister to Violet Edmunds, once fiancée of Rev. C. T. V. Richeson, was married on Saturday at her home in Devon Road, Newton, to Rev. George H. Holt, pastor of the First Baptist church, Barrie, Ont.

Roosevelt has swept the primaries in Oregon and Nebraska, thereby adding twenty-eight delegates to his list. Much speculation is evoked as to where he is getting his campaign funds, and a bill was introduced yesterday by Senator Henry calling upon candidates to present a complete statement of contributions made for their campaign.

Prince Albert, Sask., April 22—Four persons were burned to death early Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed the residence of Robert Adamson, a farmer, three miles west of Sherbrooke. The dead: Hazel Naomi, aged eight; Cecil, aged six; Horace, aged three; John Ruhlman, the hired man.

Ottawa, April 22—A. W. Smithers, chairman of the board of directors of the Grand Trunk Railway system, will come to Canada within a few days to take up with the officials here questions in regard to administration and other matters affecting the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Much of that which is called pure "civildness" is nothing but human nature.

INTERVENTION BY UNITED STATES IN MEXICAN TROUBLES

(Bangor Commercial)

The conditions in Mexico do not improve and indeed the contrary appears to be the case. The Americans who still remain in that country believe that intervention on the part of the United States is not far off and say that it must come if the lives and property of Americans are to be protected.

There is no desire on the part of our people to send an army into Mexico. Our country has been bitterly condemned for the war with Mexico often alluded to by historians as the only war of conquest in which the United States has ever indulged and it is realized that action on the part of the United States would, very likely, result in hostilities and serve as nothing else would, antagonistic to the present discordant elements in Mexico in a united opposition to a foreign force.

The other day our department of state sent a message to Mexico, a dignified statement that the rights of Americans must be protected, a statement doubtless called forth by the early knowledge of matters that are just coming into public knowledge and which are reported to include the killing of several Americans. This note drew forth a rather cool answer from the Madero government to the effect that it proposes to comply with international law and that the United States must not attempt to interfere with Mexican affairs. The good intentions of the Madero government are not questioned but the difficulty is that the situation has reached far beyond government control. Mexico today is in a state of anarchy, a condition from which there is little indication that it can extricate itself without outside assistance, and there are constant reports of attacks upon Americans, assaults instigated by the hostility which the lower classes of Mexicans have long held against our people.

The conditions have become so intolerable that the American engineers and other employees on the Mexican railway, numbering some 700 have quit work and will return north next week. By far the greater portion of Americans who were in Mexico three months ago have left the country but there are some who cannot and these are making very strong appeals to the state department for protection. The situation is a very delicate one.

THE ST. JOHN AMATEURS IN OTTAWA

(Ottawa Free Press.)

In producing Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," the Loyalist Dramatic club of St. John, N. B., also made a great hit.

The play is so striking a contrast to Will's comedy and it is so well known to Ottawa players. The deep current of thought running through the play, the diversity in the characters of the inmates of that house and the striking changes wrought by the saintly Bishop of Benavente on the characters were well interpreted and clearly defined.

Fred C. Macneil was quite good as the Bishop in the Servant in the House. He was particularly careful of his manner, and he maintained the austerity of character throughout.

To Rupert E. Walker, as the unfortunate dead man, the man around whose life and actions the play evolves, much praise must be given. It is a trying and difficult part for an amateur and he came through in first class style.

As his brother Rev. William Smythe, J. L. Robertson was excellent and support of an unusual strength was given him by Mrs. Frances C. McCaskill, as his wife.

Miss Marjorie Knight as the niece acted very well but her provincial dialect was unpleasant and she was also over-petulant.

Mr. Walker yesterday received word that the St. John amateurs had won fifth place. The prizes for individual acting were given to Mrs. Walter of the Ottawa Club, and Miss Dorothy Castle, of the Winnipeg amateurs, who tied for a branch donated by Margrave Adams. Mr. McMann of Winnipeg won the silver ring.
