Govt. Ship Takes Men Off Moldegaard, Ashore in N. S.

WRECKAGE FOUND

Norwegian steamer Moldegaard, which piled up yesterday morning in Shutin Island, nine miles off Chebucto Plane In Air it was thought in marine circles that the toll of life taken in the series of North Atlantic disasters caused by the dense fog that has shrouded the coast of Nova Scotia for three days would remain at five, representing the loss in the sinking of the Nova Scotia schooner Cape D'Or, which was rammed and sunk Thurs-

had been identified as the three masted schooner Cape D'Or, which was rammed by the steamer Clackamas yesterday and which resulted in the drowning of four seamen and the captain's wife, Mrs. Wilkie, whose body was recovered and brought to Hulifax. The Arleux is proceeding to Halifax with the wrecked vessel in tow. It is assumed that after the schooner went down the salt cargo emptied through the hole in her side and the wrock refloated.
