BETTER THAN LORENZ.

Canadian Surgeon Made Lame St. John Boy Walk Again.

The operation which restored to Edward Bond, the young son of James Bond, of Mill street, the use of his feet, is worthy of a place among surgical achievements. The operation was performed at the General Hospital of Montreal last fall by Dr. J. Armstrong, the noted Canadian surgeon.

When the young son of James Bond, of Mill street, was brought to Montreal it was with little hope of bringing him back a cured boy. Dr. Armstrong, after looking at Master Bond's case, decided that the boy was too old for the Lorenz bloodless treatment, so the knife had to be resorted to. The knife was used with the most satisfactory results, for Master Bond, after staying at the Montreal hospital about a month, came back to his home on Christmas Day with almost the natural use of his feet.

Mr. Bond speaks in the highest terms of praise of the manner in which his son was treated at the Montreal hospital.

POLICE COURT.

Coke O'Brien Puts on the Overalls Again—Man Charged With Assault Let Go.

"Coke" O'Brien has gone back to the Rock Candy Mine gang, and unless some friend pays eight dollars into the treasury or "Coke" makes another successful break for liberty, he will work for the city for two months. "Coke" has been on his good behavior for some months past, but yesterday got into the rear entrance of the local agency for La Batt's brewery. "Coke" always did get tangled up with breweries.

George Clark, whom some of the police officers styled "King Alcohol," was found drunk on Walker's wharf and headed guilty in court this morning. He was given the same medicine as prescribed for "Coke," $8 or two months with hard labor.

Two ordinary drunks were fined $4 or ten days.

The O'Leary-Brown assault case was taken up and occupied some time, the defendant Brown being eventually discharged. In this case Andrew O'Leary accused Arthur Brown of striking him. As soon as Brown knew of the warrant being sworn out against him he went to the central police station and left a deposit of $20. He was in court yesterday and asked for an adjournment till he could secure witnesses. This morning both parties were on hand early. Mr. O'Leary was represented by John Kerr, K. C., while Mr. Brown looked after his own interests.

O'Leary swore that while standing at the corner of Mill and Union streets a week ago last Saturday night some one struck him, knocked him down and that he did not regain consciousness till Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock. He did not know till several days later who struck him.

A street car conductor named Toward he saw the two men in a ditch, and later saw O'Leary fall. Dr. Barry told of attending Brown.

For the defence Arthur Connolly swore that O'Leary threatened to strike him and he asked him to wait till he had filled the police. O'Leary then caught hold of Brown and pulled him into the street. Brown tried to get away, but could not. Whether Brown struck O'Leary or shoved him he could not say. He heard O'Leary use some very bad language.

Brown went on the stand and told a similar story. A tailor named Murphy, who witnessed the affair from his premises in the O'Leary building, corroborated Brown's statements.

His honor reviewed the matter at some length and dismissed the charge.

LOCATION OF CHEMICAL ENGINES.

One Will be Placed in No. 1, H. and L. Station, and the Other in No. 3, North End.

There has been, and in fact is yet, much speculation as to where the two chemical engines will be located when they reach this city. As far as can be learned, they will be placed in the North End and the other in a central place in the city proper.

The officials have carefully looked into the matter, with the result that they will endeavor to get the council to make such change in No. 1 Hook and Ladder station on King street east as will permit of the straight or double six engine being housed in that station. The chief of the fire department, it would be necessary that the engine, if located there, should be back of the chief's cart, because there are many days when there are no alarms, but the chief has business at the various stations that occasion the use of his team. If the chemical was given the advance position it would occasion the frequent removal to allow the chief's cart to pass out. On all occasions when the chemical would be called out the chief's fire would have to go so there would be no delay, as some of the officials at first contended.

The combination engine will be located in No. 3 Hook and Ladder station, Portland street. These engines weigh something over 4,000 pounds each, and require two horses to haul them. The result is that in the stations referred to it will be necessary to provide for the accommodation of two additional horses and sleeping quarters for two men.

STMR. BRUNSWICK ON FIRE.

Delayed by Blaze Which Did Her Considerable Damage at Parrsboro, N. S.

The steamer Brunswick arrived in port last evening shortly after six o'clock, a day overdue. The cause of the delay was a fire which broke out in the steamer on Monday morning, just as she was leaving the dock at Parrsboro for this port.

The steamer had just previously returned from Bass River, where she had taken an outing party. Her cargo for this port had been all put on board and her lines were thrown off, when smoke burst up from the boiler room. Winfield Rooney, a deck hand, was one of the first to discover the fire. He warned Capt. Potter and the steamer, by this time some hundreds of feet from the wharf, was put back and her lines again secured.

With the assistance of the fire brigade of Parrsboro the crew, under a light of three hours, succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

The fire extended into the engine room and did considerable damage. Capt. Potter is today arranging the insurance.

The steamer leaves this evening for Parrsboro, where repairs will probably be made.

NEW FACTS CONCERNING CANCER.

An important and in some respects startling series of entirely fresh discoveries in regard to cancer are announced in the report of the Cancer Research Fund, over the third annual meeting of the general committee, of which fund the Prince of Wales presided at Marlborough House, London.

Briefly stated in non-technical language, the new facts are:

That cancer pervades the whole civilized and uncivilized world. Civilization, therefore, is not, as had been supposed, one of its causes. It pervades animal as well as human life.

It is found in marine fishes. It attacks all subjects at relatively the same age-periods.

It is not an infectious disease. It is not transmissible from one species to a strange species.

The cancer cell can re-acquire powers of self-propagation. Cancer is not caused by a parasite. The maldity is not on the increase. Radium has not yet been found to exert any curative effect.

BUB'S PROTEST.

Willis Brooks, in the Brooklyn Eagle, tells a story of a precocious little lad whose mother liked to show him off. One night while there was company and Bub showed signs of being sleepy, his mother conceived the tormenting idea of making him say his prayers in puerile Bub didn't want to, but in obedience to low toned threats he plumped down on his chubby knees and grudgingly went through the formula. "God bless papa and mama," he closed the long, memorized invocation, and was rising from his knees when his mother mildly, but firmly, forced him down again.

"Who else?" she asked, expectantly. "An' baby sister," he went on wearily. "Who else?" "An' Ellen." (She was the nurse.) "Who else?" "An' Bridget." (The cook.) Bub made another attempt to rise, but was pressed down again.

"Aren't you going to ask God to bless your uncles and aunts?" his mother asked. "There were six of us in that category, all sitting there like inquisitors, torturing the poor little fellow by our silent acquiescence.

"Go on!" his mother urged. "God bless Uncle Willis and Aunt Alice and—"

Bub was out of patience. With all the malice that his little heart could hold, he interrupted with: "God bless Uncle Willis and Aunt Alice and the whole damn push."

Then he was snatched up and carried from the room, kicking with his two little legs and all his outraged soul. Honor bright, can you blame him?

AN IMPROVED GOLF BALL

At a gathering of the Lamb's Club last month Sam Bernard tried to make them all believe that he knew a man who had invented a cowcatcher for a train which not only caught the cow, but milked her and threw her back without injury.

"Very ingenious," said De Wolf Hopper, "but when you are speaking of mechanical inventions, it is probably only right that I should mention about my cousin, who lives just outside of Chicago. He has always been fond of mechanics, and is constantly constructing things for various uses. A few years ago he took up the game of golf and joined a golf club. Every time he went over the course he
