and his freedom from arrest are a temptation to and premium upon crime. They certainly betoken no high appreciation of the equal right to all doctrine. But we should not be too hasty in casting the blame of the freedom enjoyed by the defaulter upon the citizens of Halifax. Justice may in this instance, perhaps, be too much tempered with mercy, more especially as the justice may be misinterpreted as being extended to his former position and not to the critical state of his health. The shareholders of the Bank and the general public should see, however, that the authorities take steps to put Mr. Forman under strict surveillance, Nothing further has transpired concerning the defal-cation. The great length of time over which it has extended necessitate such a long and sifting investigation that the committee can hardly be expected to report within a month or more.

It is now stated, and generally believed, that Mr. Forman has left the Province, and is now in New York. He left Halifax some days ago for the purpose, nominally, of visiting some relations in Colchester county.—Chronicle.
