Old-time Method Revived of News paper Reading.

The London Times, which has returned to the reading circle idea as a means of saving paper, says that there are still people living in London who remember the days when the Times was sent around to varous circles for perusal at set hours in the morning, afternoon and even-ing. There were three boys for his district, and their first round was at 8 a.m. Certain customers who paid their shilling a week received the paper at 8 o'clock. They kept it for two hours, when the boys called again and took it to the next subscriber. After that the tariff was 6d a week for an hour a day, or 9d for two hours.

None of the London newspapers had country agencies in those days, and, consequently, after the last person had read the paper it was posted to the country or abroad. Before this happened, however, the paper was passed on to subscribers who paid 6d a week for the privilege of having the Times from 6 in the evening until the Times from 6 in the Ti

50 YEARS OF WOOD PULP.

Great Benefit of Utilization of Wood For Paper Making.

It is just 50 years since the wood pulp paper in the United States was manufactured, and it would be Wheat to nourish every member of the family. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with milk make a good, was manufactured, and it would be difficult to estimate the benefit this has conferred upon the world, for it was a step in the dissemination of knowledge, particularly current news, just as was the invention of movable types and the printing press, says the Portland Oregonian.

It will be remembered by many still living with what care every rag was saved to be converted into paper, and how the paper, after it had served its purpose at the printer's, was carefully put aside for wrapping parcels. Those were days of automatically imposed thrift, which were followed by posed thrift, which were followed by disregard of economics so widespread that already after only half a century we are confronted by a prospect of serious shortage of supply of the new raw material.

Just as the supply of rags in Just as the supply of rags in the sixties would not have sufficed for growing needs, so it appears that soon there will not be enough wood pulp to go around. But we have grown so accustomed to finding substitutes when we had to have them that the world is not slawed.
