LAUGH, LADY, LAUGH!

Laugh, lady, laugh!
There's no avail in weeping;
Grief was never made
To be in beauty's keeping.
Tears are of a stream
Where pleasure lies decaying;
Smiles, like rays of light
O'er many, waters playing.
Laugh, lady, laugh!

Sing, lady, sing!
There is a charm in singing,
When melody its spells
Upon the air is flinging; Sweet sounds have often w More than the fairest faces. And harps have ever been
The plaything of the Graces.
Sing, lady, sing!

Love, lady, fove ! There's always joy in loving ; But sigh not when you find That man is fond of roving : For when the summer bee
Takes wing through beauty's bowers,
He knows not which to choose Among the many flowers. Loye, lady, love !

ESCAPE FROM MATRIMONY.

"We are liable to disappointments," said my "True we are," I answered; "but you surely don't pretend to call mine a disappointment?"
"What else, you blockhead?"
"Why, an escape, aunt—a wonderful, miraculous, and delightful escape."
"Why, these words are strange, Peter!"
"No more strange than true, my good nunt,

"No more strange than true, my good sunt, and every day's observation teaches me that I am right. Merely peeping, aunt—looking into the secrets of their hearts—the secrets and the houses of those who are married—and I thought then of those who are married—and I thought then of the true blessings of liberty. 'Tis a gift of heaven, bestowed upon man by his divine Greator; and all animated beings, free from the thraidom of all animated beings, free from the thraldom of slavery, sing together for joy—and why?—because they are free."

"Why, Peter, you are inspired."

"I am, aunt, when speaking of liberty."

"Then you don't regard the loss of Dolly?"

"Not a fig—not a fig. Did you ever hear of the reason of our separation, aunt?"

"No."

"Well I will tall it to you will a great the reason."

Well, I will tell it to you; 'tis an excellent joke, I assure you. We were on our way to church, for the awful crime of matrimony, trudging along the path leading to the holy pile, quite loving and affectionate, when all of a sudden Dolly looks up in my face, and cries 'Peter! Peter!' What, Dolly ?? says I. 'Peter, who is to make the fire after we are married?' 'You, of course, Dolly, I replied, 'that, you must be aware, is a female's place, her duly.' 'Mr. Single, I tell you that it is unmannerly, ungentleman-like, and unhusband-like too, to say that I must make the free. And do you think I will get up on a cold, frosty morning, while you are sleeping in bed, and make your fire, sir? Thy, Dolly, my dear, this is strange conduct; and I went on to tell in the strange conduct. her that I would prepare the wood over hight, and have everything ready for her; but no, no—she declared positively that she would not make the fire, and I told her, 'Then, Dolly, hang me if I have you!' 'Then, Mr. Single, hang me if I care!'' said she; and so we separated—and I have been glad of it ever since. I sign myself, with great pleasure, Peter Single.''

UPSET TO AN ENTERPRISING WIDOW WITH A PRETTY DAUGHTER.

The New Orleans Crescent relates a good story of a widow in that city, who had fixed her heart upon a thriving merchant who kept a family gro-cery store on the corner. She thus commenced

And more than this—she opened an account at his store, and two or three times daily in fine weather, Miss E. was dispatched to purchase some indispensable nothing 'that nobody could select but herself!' English and American Courage .- On the second morning we set out, and visited several interesting places in the neighborhood of Niagara. Amongst the rest Drummondville, so named after General Drummond, called some years ago, Lundy Lune. At this place a dreadful battle was fought in the Late war, between the British and American forces. The people have erected three or four "stands" of considerable elevation, ascended by a flight of steps in the inside, for the purpose of showing the battle-field. We reached the top of one of these stands, kept by an old soldier, who described the course of the battle in all its details. General Scott, the distinguished commander of the American armies in the late Mexican war, was second in command at this sanguinary conflict. The old man pointed out a graveyard, belonging to a little Presbyterian chapel, where the British artillery was planted. The Americans attacked this artillery, and took it; the English commander ordered a body of infautry to advance, for the purpose of re-capturing the lost guns, and this proved successful. The Americans, not willing to lose their prize, were brought into deadly conflict with the British troops, in a charge of The old soldier descanted on the fact. bayonets.
