gestlement who, at the risk of their twee, prompted by a feeling of toyalty only, about this beautiful potrait of their Sovereign. We should not have again mertioned the names of these gentlement, but that we were told two Prench Constitute, when they had librally mething to do with the twee were told two Prench Constitute, when they had librally mething to do with the The facts are simply these, that Mr. Alfred Tooki, Mr. Berry White, of the Colonial Life Assurance, and Mr. Howend, Surgeon to the Montreal Rye and Ear Institution, were the Jarrises by whote hands alone this picture was asvet; they took it from the frame in the Hall, earlies it shows cairs through the smoke and times smill, arriving at the bottom of the state, in the boby, he swe takes gentlement lost their campaints in the smoke, and the smoke, and the smoke, and the smoke, and he smoke and the smoke may be the state gentlement lost their campaints in the smoke and the smoke and the smoke, and make the smoke and th

sive operations. The outposts of the insurgent army have been attacked; but up to the last accounts the Royal army had not ventured to make any serious movement. A unspanie of gunpowder had exploded at Bendsbourg, committing great have, and killing a number of ecopie; but General You William gives out that it has not in any way crippled his resources. The Danes seem determined to drive the German army out of Schleswig, and should they pass the Eyder, the war will assume a very serious aspect. It is evident that the Danes are in possession of the whole of Schleswig, with the exception of Rendsbourg, and backed by the moral support of all the great Furopean powers, I am quite prepared to hear that they will push the war into Holstein, regardless of what Germany may think of such a step. There is a report that England and Russia have sent Commissioners to Copenhagen shift is doubtful, and I do not see the slightest diminution in the German papers of hostile feeling a sinst Denmark about the whole question. For my part, I truly believe that if Denmark yielded to the Duchies a "Constitution" as liberal as that of the United States, and that of France to boot, it would then be found that local government had nothing to do with the quarrel, as it really has not—but disappointed Germany would find some new pretext to seize the coveted Provinces, in order that she might realise her bright dream of a great United, Naval, German Emptre.

The position of Prussia and Austria becomes daily more and more autagonistic. Prussia cajoded the Germans with a scheme of "German Unity." Austria developed her project of "Free Trade." As the one advanced, the other receded Germany is much where it was four years ago, in spite of half a dozen Revolutions, as many Sieges, and Bands, Diets, Plennuns, Vereins, and Assemblies without number. The ambition of Prussia and Austria each to role over Germany has assumed many insiduous forms, but their Princes are as much opposed, as if they each had half a milition of solders arrayed against each the imprisonment by the latter of the Archbisho of Turn. Lord Howden has arrived at Madrid, and had delivered his credentials to the Queen of Spain.

IRISH AFFAIRS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

DUBLIN, August 14, 1850. DUBLIN, August 14, 1850.

I am sorry to have to say, that within the last eight days the disease in the Potato crop has made considerable progress. In some localities the stalks are completely blackened, and the fields emit the offensive smelt which was so perceptible on the first outbreak of the disease in 1845. The tubers have become affected, and in these places the loss already is calculated to amount to one third or one fourth of the crop, sometimes to more. From other localities the report is more favorable, and the potato fields are represented to have a licelity appearance. The country markets are abundantly supplied, they sell at a supplied, they sell at a

The Repeal Association, which avery one supposed to be defunct, and about which nothing had been heard for some weeks, was faministed by Mr. John O'Consell on Monday last. How long it is likely to survive this time is not known.

During the last week, the Garrison Races have been going on in the Plannik Park, and have attracted, as usuals large concustors of the citizens. A sporting match, which is exciting much interest, is now going on in the vicinity of Dublin. Cootes, the pedestrian, has been backed to walk 1,000 half miles in 1,000 successive half hours; he has now completed searly two-thirds of the fumber, and walks firmly enough. The vicinity is faily much crowded; particularly by the lower orders.

An Election for the Borough of Dungamon took place on the 4th ultimo. Lord Northland, the members, who is now at Madeira, vacated his seat in consequence of the state of his health. Mr. Alexander, an English Barrister, son to the late Bishop of Meath, and the Hon. Stant Knox, amposince themselves as candidate. No contest, however, ensued; Lord Northland was proposed agais, and no other candidate appearing, he was declared daily elected.

The extension of the Dublin and Belfast Junction Railway to the Wellington Inn Station, two miles upon the Dublin side of Newry, was opened for public traffic during the past week.

The number of hodges which have been recovered from the wreck of the Orion steamer, recently wrecked off Port Patrick, amounts to 46. The hull of the vessel could not be a lased, and is much broken up; it, and the materials, were sold by a action last week, and realized £300. The trial of her officers, it is supposed, will come on about the 19th of this month.—It is said that the Orent Britain steamhip has been purchased by a Livergool firm connected with the entigration trale, and is to be fixed up for the con

perty, occurred in Westmoreland Street on San-day night last; it was got under after destroying two houses, one of which was the office of the Agent of a London Insurance Company—no lives were lost.

The weather continues favorable for farming operations, and all the crops look healthy, with the exception of the potato; but the price of Corn continues stationary notwithstanding.

The Secretary of the Philadelphia Emigrants

DEAR Str.-I have read with much interest the Report of the meeting lately held at Buffelo, with the view to the establishment of a branch of the Philadelphia Emigrants' Priend Society in that city. I consider the objects and ally resort to our shores,

I am, Sir,

ced to the h.c.-their hurry and orderly scene into which they had rushed.

The Speaker then addressed her Most Gracious Mejesty, sizeing that her Commons had been laboring in accordance with the directions of her gracious speech on opening the session. They had passed an Australian Colonies Bill, which was to invest those Coloni a with the power, subject to her Majesty's approval, of poweding themselves with a representive Government adapted to their wants, and he expressed a hope that such measure would promote the deviopment of the rust resources of Australia. They had passed a Merciantile Marine Bill, and a Parliamentary F anchise for Ir-land Bill, and a parliamentary of the measures, with a reference to, which he would not trouble her Majesty contributed to reduce twa-iron while providing adequate supplies for the exigencies of the nation. Me then prayed her Majesty's assent to the Consolute of Fund Bill, and to other mature.

The officer of the House signified the royal assent to the measures in question, and the old Norman French was beard in accents to which the audience were little accustomed. The Chancellor then presented her Majesty with the royal speech i and the Queen, with a precision of arriculation which permitted every word to be heard to the rom test corner of the building, delivered the speech, which will be found in our London Correspondent's letter.
