Several weeks ago Miss Dronkova, a teacher and graduate of the university of Moscow, reached New York on the Estonia. While examined at Ellis Island she showed letters of introduction to people to Chicago and said she was going there to learn English and to teach. She was in perfect health, of spotless character but she did not have the $25 which is required of immigrants. The officials would not let her stay and she was deported. Two weeks ago the Birma brought her into port again, and when she passed before the examiners she showed them $45. Then she stopped before the physicians. They remembered her fine face and splendid figure, but there was something different. The lustrous coal black tresses that on the former occasion had hung in great curls to her waist were gone. The girl had sold them to get the money which would prove the "open sesame at Ellis Island."
