"Touch it with something metallic and you will get a distinct shock. At the same time there will be a crackling sound and a spark will appear at the point of contact. If another person than the one who has been operating it should begin to pound the keyboard after the machine has been in continuous use for a couple of hours he will experience a real electrical sensation, the pins-and-needles feeling of a foot asleep. Drawing the sheet of paper off the roller rapidly will charge the paper, and it will crackle when laid on the other paper. THE WHITE PLAGUE. Consumption Kills One Person in Fou

Tuberculosis may, and does, invade every portion of the body, says a writer in Leslie's Monthly for June, but it has a selective affinity for the lungs; there a selective affinity for the lange, fore, pulmonary tuberculosis, or, in common parlance, consumption, most appropriately termed the Great White priately termed the Great Plague.

It is the most prevalent disease in the world, and the most terrible, since hope of recovery is so rarely confirmed that it is held to be incurable. Were it as contagious as it is deadly, the world would soon be depopulated; as it is, excluding death by accident, tuberculosis kills a quarter of us all. Think of that perilous chance—one out of every four to be sacrificed to this dread disease, and yet, it can be made "to disease, from the world! disappear from the world!

"Few reach maturity," says Osler, "and none reach old age without having had a focus of this disease some ing had a locus of this disease some time. The germ is ubiquitous, and none escapes it. But the resisting power of the human body is very great, hence all are not finally vanquished by this germ." Suppose our power of re-sistance happens to be below par at the time the germ may have found a rest-ing place in his favorite haunt.—the apex of the right lung, then.—pouf! we write finis, and begin our exit.

The present is marked by a crusade against tuberculosis which amounts almost to a mania,—even the pendulum of public opinion, so slow in swinging, swings too far. The public is just now awakening to its need, yet they have been invited to assist in arresting the spread of this disease ever since the days of Louis, who wanted the various countries of Europe to form a crusade against it

Statistics recently compiled in France show that that country is a land of what what political economists call "small men." This term refers, of course, to the holdings of the individual, which are more evenly diffused in France than in any other civilized country. In support of this statement it is shown by statistics that France has fewer than 20,000 persons who have property valued at 1,000,000 francs ($193,000) or more. Abaut 14,000, of these have fortunes of from $193,000 to $350,000; of the remaining 6,000 only about 100 have from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 each, while in all France there are not more than ten persons whose property is valued at $19,000,000 or over.
