The paragraph relating to this question reads

the enrichment of a few; it has checked immigration; it has caused great loss of population; it has impeded commerce; it has discriminated against Great Britain. In these and many other ways it has occasioned great public and private injury, all of which events must continue to grow in intensity as long as the present tariff system remains in force. That the highest interests of Canada demand a removal of the obstacle to our country's progress by the adoption of a sound fiscal policy, which, while not doing injustice to any class, will promote domestic and foreign trade, and hasten the return of prosperity to our people. the return of prosperity to our people.

That to the end that the tariff should be reduced to the needs of honest, economical and efficient government; that it should be so adjusted to make free, or to bear as light as possible upon the necessaries of life, and should be so arranged as to promote freer trade with the whole world more particularly with Great Britain and the United States. We believe that the results of the protective system have grievously disappointed thousands of persons who honestly supported it, and that the country, in the light of experience, is now prepared to declare for a sound fiscal policy. The issue between the two political parties on this question is now clearly defined. The Government themselves admit failure of their fiscal policy, and now profess their willingness to make some changes; but they say that such changes must be based only on the principle of protection. We denounce the principle of protection as radically unsequed, and minst to the

The New York Independent, a religious journal of good standing, recently commented on the deplorable ignorance of the Bible so noticeable among otherwise well educated United States people. It cited a college president in support of its comtention, that few, if any, United States college graduates had anything but the most superficial acquaintance with the greatest of all books. It proceeds: "That a young man or a young woman should graduate from college knowing all about Caesar and Cicero and Homer and Xenophon, and knowing nothing about Moses and David and little or nothing about Jesus Christ or Paul, is the height of absurdity. Neither can get into a college without knowing something of those Latin or Greek masters, but either can come out of it without calls "the New England skule sys-tem." He has the idea that any de-parture from that "system" would de-stroy the foundations of his country, tion in the school room would entail some concessions to Roman Catholics and others, and of course the Indedent itself would kick against that.

ENGLISH AT THE HEAD.

More people speak English than any ized world, and the increase in the use of English is so rapid that it may ultimately outstrip all 'the European languages collectively. At the begin-ming of the present century French stood at the head of the languages in people of Europe and America spoke French. Then followed, in the order uate from college knowing all about Caesar and Cloero and Homer and Xenophon, and knowing nothing about Moses and David and little or mothing about Jesus Christ or Paul, is the height of absurdity. Neither can get into a college without knowing something of those Latin or Greek masters, but either can corne out of it without knowing much if anything about the great Bible characters. We say this is a reproach to us, and so it is." The Independent does well to protest, for the Bible—wholly aside from the use theologians make of it—is the greatest of all books, and contains more that a man ought to know than any other book the world contains or ever did contain. But we fear that the Independent will protest in vain. The whole trend of United States thought is, and has for two centuries, been to oust the Bible from the only place where full and lasting knowledge of it can ever be obtained—namely, the school. A Snattered Nervous System Built Up and Strengthened . By Paine's Celery

"I wish to express my gratitude for the great good accomplished in my case by your Paine's Celery Compound. I had commenced using strong drink while quite young, with the result that my whole system was run down and shattered. I was under the care of several doctors, but they did not seem to understand my case and could do nothing for me. I commenced using your Paine's Celery Compound, and it soon made me a new man. My nervous system is completely built up. My appetite is natural and healthy, and I feel better and stronger than ever before. Paine's Celery Compound has done these wonders for me, and I cannot thank you sufficiently."

A Washington despatch states that the Langley flying machine flew a distance of one thousand feet down the Potomac river a few days ago. The machine is now propelled by storage batteries placed under the wings, and moves independently of any control from the float from which the flights are made. It is believed that the machine will fly a great distance. Prof. Langley has already spent more than $50,000 in the experimental work, and he believes that before long he will be able to build a practical machine. All of the recent tests have been made for the purpose of developing certain facts in relation to propellers of different sizes and shapes. THE CANADIAN PRESS. The talk of another session is due, manifestly, to two ideas, says the Brantford Expositor. The first, and probably the most potent, is to enable needy ministerial followers to get another $1.000 as an aid in their campaign. The second is to give the good times a chance to get in with a more marked movement. Neither of these causes is sufficient to justify the extra expense which a useless session would cost.

The Liberal papers in general have little respect for knighthoods, and for the recently appointed knights.

In all probability the same men are using the knighthood bait to get at the pockets of ambitious individuals. It is just as easy to promise a knighthood as it is to pledge a senatorship. What a cheapening of honors, says the London Advertiser.

While there is a breathing place in the negotiations concerning the Manitoba school case, the press is again discussing the probabilities of a settlement. The Stratford Herald, which is willing to desert the Conservative party on this question, rather favors the proposal that separate schools, such as Ontarlo has, with proper curriculum and inspection, be established. The Hamilton Spectator, however, objects to such a proposal, and says that that would give the minority everything it asks for and doubts if Greenway would agree to this, for it would mean his own political destruction. The Kingston News approves of the scheme, and says that Greenway should recognize that through such a system every Catholic child will receive a certain minimum of education, and that is all the state has any right to require. The Brantford Expositor says that no compromise can be efwithdrawn. The Ottawa Journal sees in the con-

FIRE NEAR VERNON.

A week ago to-day word was received at Vernon that the fine residence of Messrs. Streatfield and Turner, erected last year, on their farm near the Coldstream ranch, had that afternoon been destroyed by fire. Mr. Streatfield is absent at the coast, and Mr. Turner was in town on the afternoon of the unfortunate occurrence, leaving the premises unoccupied. The fire was first observed by E. Kelly, manager of the Coldstream ranch, who saw smoke issuing from the building and immediately hurried to the scene of the conflagration. On the way he gave the alarm to some men who were working at a ditch, but when they reached the house the flames had gained to great a headway to be got under control. All that they could do was to endeavor to save some of the contents of the building, and in this they were successful, as by hard work they succeeded in removing most of the furniture and some of Mr. Turner's personal effects, though a considerable amount of valuable property was unfortunately destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown, though it is supposed to have started in some way in a shed close to the house. The building was insured, but the loss will be heavy. FIRE NEAR VERNON.
