TAXES AND EXEMPTIONS.

To the Planet.—In my last article I treated bonuses rather than my quill dipped in ridicule than in the serious way in which so serious an evil should be treated. But let us proceed to study taxes and exemptions. That compact, which we call society, must be maintained and cannot be maintained without doing something and all the people should contribute to that cost. Society in return owes to each citizen the protection of his rights and property and life, and reputation. Society in order to fulfil its obligations to its citizens, organizes courts, employs police, etc., and, if necessary, standing armies. I shall justly call down the Christian church for dodging its obligation to society in the matter of taxes. Society is giving to the church all it owes to her while she is not contributing to a society as other organizations contribute, excusing herself because she is doing good, and tacitly saying let those who are doing less good pay what I owe. As I think that tax exemptions are interlarded and interlarded with everything that is evil in our political system, I must call down the church. The tax exemptions have blinded the eyes and blunted the conscience of Christian men to a very serious length and have closed the mouth of the pulpit, and the religious press to nearly all the wrongs that have crept into society right before the eyes of all. I have heard the statement and give it for what it is worth. It is worth that nearly half of the property in Montreal is exempted, being the property of church, clergy, nuns, or other religious orders.

Suppose, Mr. Editor, you and I go to Manitoba and take up land. You decide on a lot of government land and I take the lot next yours from the C. P. R. My land is exempt for 20 years after I get my patent, and I can delay the issuing of the patent for five more years, and that gives me 25 years of exemption. What effect has that upon you? You must pay double (extortion) taxes or the municipality must stand back and make no progress either in schools or roads or any other public works, as they cannot come to me for taxes, but I can use roads and schools which you pay for as freely as you can. So tax exemptions make tax extortion and defeat the progress of society. Still, while it ruins you it does not benefit me, as I must pay a full equivalent to the C. P. R. for all this exemption in the price of the land. I surely don't need to expose the iniquity of exemptions in the county of Kent, where the Canada Company has got their work in in pretty good shape. Many of them have three horses and a colt and wanting to make two teams hitch the colt with a strong horse, but he bears the double load in such a way that the strong horse must draw more of the load than the colt, but I have shown you that exemptions as far as Manitoba lands are concerned make a very heavy burden to the weak horse and large revenues for the capitalist.

Now let us look at any business, say the carriage business at Chatham. The bonuses I spoke of in my last article and also the exemptions are given to the strong horse, while the weak horse must pay extortion. No wonder, he is in 50 carriage shops in and around Chatham have been driven to the wall since protective bonuses and exemptions have been the order. While we now have a large shop or two, the men are not employed who were in the old shops, and have nothing but exodus for it. Exodus, yes, Canada has become a land of bondage and her children are hunting a Canadian of liberty. Exodus rightly said. Protection has given us big mills but it is by driving 95 per cent of the old mills to the wall. Protection has given us big tanneries by driving all the small tanneries to the wall. Tin-smithing, carriage making, shoemak-ing, saddlery, tailoring, wooden mill and machine shops, the story is the same, no employment for one man in five. Protection has ruined them all and depopulated all the small cities and towns in Canada. Will the new Yorkian destroy protection? Let us see. But you ask, what would become of our country if protection bonuses and exemptions were done away with?
The capitalists would all leave.
My next article will be a romance showing an exodus of capitalists and its effects.

The English "Society for the Prevention of Consumption," presided over by the Prince of Wales, was recently addressed by Sir William Broadbent, who stated that it was definitely known that every case of consumption began with a germ communicated from some other case. There is no such thing as latent consumption.
There may be local weakness which tends to consumption, but the germ has absolutely to be planted in that weak spot before consumption can enter. This ought to comfort thousands of people who have "weak chests" or "weak lungs." They are not forced-driven victims of this dread disease.
All that is needed to bid absolute defiance to this deadly scourge, is to be able to strengthen the weak lungs, and build up a strong body. The secret of this need is found in Dr.
Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies the blood and increases the blood supply, that disease is thrown off, and the system is nourished to perfect health, which defies germs of every kind. People, given up by doctors, emaciated, bleeding at the are being cured every day by the

TURNED OUT OF THEIR CAVES

The French Deceived That the Inhabited Caverns Were the Den of Thieves.

Oran, one of the chief ports of Algeria, is most picturesquely situated on a curving shore of the Mediterranean, at the foot of a frowning height to the west, on whose slope the forts, one above another, grimly guard the town, and are a standing menace to any nation who should conceive the idea of wrestling this African city from France. A number of ravines diverging from the city gates on the land side are the convenient caravan and wagon routes into the interior. Along the steep side of a ravine that leads inland from the Santon gate, some distance from the city, are a number of artificial caverns that were dug, no one knows when, in the igneous or volcanic rock known as tufa, which not being very hard lends itself readily to excavation. The entrances to these caverns are low and narrow, but within the rock has been hollowed out into quite spacious apartments and in some cases has been partitioned into two or more rooms. Twelve of these caverns are known and, strange as it may seem, the authorities of Oran assert that there are others whose entrances have not yet been discovered.
The largest cavern has four rooms and there are twenty-nine apartments in the twelve caves to which the City Fathers have recently been giving very serious attention.

All these caves have been used as human habitations and their occupants were ostensibly innocent Spanish settlers and families of Gypsies.
Real, fact, however, is said to be that the subterranean dwellings have been the homes of thieves, the dark recesses being used by brigands as a hiding place for their booty. It is more than suspected that they were originally excavated to serve the purposes of outlawry, and the fact seems to be established that of late years they have been restored to their early phase of utility.

So the government has recently undertaken a work of eviction. All these were proved guilty of lawless doings, modern troglodytes were turned into the outer air and some of them, who were provided with other secluded quarters in the city. The one thing that can be said in their favor is that they had made their underground homes quite habitable. They are really far more comfortable living places than many of the apartments occupied by the poor in large cities of the most civilized lands.

Nearly all the rooms are found to be neatly whitewashed. The air is pure because from each apartment a veni-lating shaft leads through the rock above to the open air. There are doors and chimneys, and the largest cavern is a two story affair with a staircase dug out of the rock leading to the upper story. The drainage is perfect and every cavern is absolutely dry.
The houses in the earth are really ingenious and excellent in their way and it will be a pity if the people of Oran do not find some use for them.
Their temperature is invariably cool and if they might be transferred to Germany they would probably be used as beer vaults. If we might plant them in the Palisades, some Yankee showman might turn many an honest penny by collecting in them a few bones and other prehistoric relics and exhibiting the caves as the home of the "only original" troglodytes.

Twenty Million Pins Per Day.

It requires an average of more than twenty million pins per day to sustain the falling skirts, replace the missing suspender buttons and meet the other needs of the American people. What becomes of all these pins is a question that nobody has been able to answer, but there is no falling off in the demand, so that this number must disappear in some manner every day.

It is hard to imagine anything simpler than a pin, and it is a striking proof of the complications of our modern industrial system that every pin in the course of its manufacture passes through a dozen separate processes, involving the greatest skill on the part of the operatives employed and the action of a great amount of automatic machinery.

The pin makes its appearance at the factory in the form of barrels of coiled brass wire. The first process is that of straightening this wire. The coils are placed on revolving racks, and fed from these into little machines, from the vice-like grip of which they emerge perfectly straight. Thence the wire is fed into the pinmaking machine, which is almost as complicated as a printing press. A sharp knife cuts the wire off into uniform lengths of the desired size. As each little length of wire drops from the knife it falls upon a small wheel, the edge of which is notched into grooves just large enough to hold the bits of wire.

Each piece is carried along by the wheel until an iron finger and thumb seize and hold it firmly, while an automatic hammer, by a single smart blow, puts a head on one end. Then the embryo pins fall upon another grooved wheel, which revolves horizontally. As they move on in the class of this second wheel the projecting ends pass over a number of round steel files, which nearly grind them to a point. Further on they encounter a pumice stone, which smooths off the filed ends, and then they drop into a wooden receiving box.
So far no workingman's hands have touched the pins in their progress from the reed. The cutting, heading, pointing and smoothing has all been done by the wonderful automatic machinery.

From the wooden boxes the pins go to the "whitening" room, where they are cleaned in revolving barrels filled with sawdust and receive a nickel coating in big vats. Then they are dried in the sawdust barrels and are run through a "sorting" machine. It is impossible to get the better of this machine.

The big department stores and wholesale dealers buy their pins by the case. A case contains 108 dozen papers, 360 pins in each paper. A single order from the largest stores usually calls for 100 cases, or nearly 50, 000,000 pins.

There are twelve men in Chichester, England, workhouse whose united ages make 1,042 years—an average of nearly eighty-seven years each.
