The Dec. number of The Printers Miscellany contains a large amount of matter of particular interest to the Craft. The paper, which is a very creditable production, has received an enlargement of eight pages, in all 32 pages. Friend Finlay promises to enlarge the Miscellany and to print it oftener so soon as the means at his disposal and the business of the paper will justify the step. If he succ as well as we wish him, he will have reason to be proud that he ever started the venture in which he displays so much energy and good taste.

Good.-A little boy, son of Mr. Angus Campbell, was passing along one of our streets recently, when he observed a gentleman wearing a red badge, on which the letters "D. T. R." were printed. Speaking of the matter, he said to his father, "I know what those letters stand for—Dont Touch Rum." A good explanation surely-what better could have bee given. May these words ever be fixed on his mind so indelible that he shall never indeed touch the accursed thing. Boys, remember-" Don't touch rum" -let this be one of your mottoes through life, and you will never be
