

RECALLING THE
WAR OF 1812.Stoney Creek Battle Ground
Celebration.

PATRIOTIC ADDRESSES.

The Countess of Aberdeen One of the Speakers.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING.

Hon. Thos. Balm, Hon. Dr. Montague, Alex. Muir, the Veteran Composer, and Others Tell the Wentworth Women's Historical Society of the Importance of Their Work.

On Saturday afternoon the Wentworth Women's Historical Society gave very tangible evidence of one of the objects of its existence in the celebration which took place over the formal opening of the public park on the site of the battle of Stoney Creek and also of the old Gage homestead, one of the landmarks of the war of 1812-14, which the society has also secured as a club house. Despite the chilly winds, which made teeth chatter and wrappings necessary, over a thousand people, the bulk of whom were from the city, were present to witness the celebration. Not the least interested of these present were the delegates to the Women's National Council, for whom a special car had been provided over the H. G. & O. Que's road. The old battle ground resounded with martial tread, due to the presence of a company of the 77th Battalion and a number of men of the 13th Battalion. The latter corps furnished the sentinels which patrolled various sections of the historic ground, and their bright uniforms, with those of the other scattered warriors scattered throughout the assembly, gave the military taint to the celebration that was decidedly appropriate. The old house, which stands some distance from the road, was gay with flags and bunting, and there was not lacking formidable looking cannon, which were mounted on the terrace. The proceedings opened with a procession from the main entrance to the grounds, which was headed by the Hamilton pipers, and the British Army and Navy Veterans, and after whom came Lady Aberdeen, and a detachment of the 77th Battalion, in command of Lieut.-Col. Gwyn and Capt. W. E. S. H. The patriotic addresses were naturally the order of the day, and Mayor Foster, from the platform of the home-stead, opened this part of the programme with one of his happiest efforts in the speech-making line. He thought the day was one which he honored in having the Women's Historical Society take up the work of perpetuating the memory of the great deeds done by the brave men who fought for British institutions and British names. He said that of 1812: "If you ever want anything done," he advised, "do it yourself, or get the ladies to do it." (Laughter and applause.) His policy was that Mrs. Calder, President of the Historic Society, and to whose efforts the society was a public park was largely due, was a lineal descendant of the first occupant of the home-stead. It was also a singularly fortunate that in recalling the heroes of Canada's early days, those present had also preserved the stories of the fate of the women of this country in every walk of life. (Applause.)

Lady Aberdeen was the next speaker, and she congratulated the Women's Historical Society on the work they had undertaken. Nowadays people were too much interested in the past to grant that they knew all about the history of their country from books. She said that the battle of Stoney Creek was a public park was largely due, was a lineal descendant of the first occupant of the home-stead. It was also a singularly fortunate that in recalling the heroes of Canada's early days, those present had also preserved the stories of the fate of the women of this country in every walk of life. (Applause.)

Mr. O. S. Howland, of Toronto, followed with an interesting address, in which he described the night attack of the British force on the American force, so much superior in numbers and equipment, encamped on the site of the day's celebration. He told of the bold plan outlined by the British general, and the manner in which they tied up the mountain side, and of the important part that battle took in the eventual conclusion of the war. Continuing the speaker referred to the news received only on Saturday morning of the British victory in South Africa, which showed that British hearts and British arms were still capable of maintaining the glory of the British nation. As the battle of Stoney Creek was smaller than that of the enemy, and like that of Stoney Creek, the battle was an uphill fight. Most of British glory had come from uphill fights. (Applause.)

The British flag would always float over hearts that no uphill fights could shake. The British flag would always float over hearts that no uphill fights could shake. The British flag would always float over hearts that no uphill fights could shake. (Applause.)

Mr. Howland closed with a reference to the public spiritedness of Lady Aberdeen, and by expressing the hope that the citizens of Hamilton, especially, would emulate her deeds in preserving the battle-ground as a park.

Hon. Thos. Balm, M. P., who was announced as the first Commissioner of Canada, was given a cordial reception. He remained his hearers of what the country owed to the ladies for SCIENCE IN THE KITCHEN.

Stoneware Preferable for Some Cooking Purposes.

USEFUL HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

A kitchen in which pottery appears in plenitude for the various kinds of its capable service waits an odor of purity and fascinates with a sense of cleanliness.

In numerous kinds of cookery it has no equal, and in some there are dishes one might better shun than attempt to prepare and serve without it. Many who are using iron, tin or earthenware for the purpose of boiling, broiling and roasting, the metal are more convenient, but for baking, pot-roasting, braising, stewing and fricassees, there is no improvement over the stoneware.
