THE BOTSFORD FIRE.

A Midnight Call to the Firemen.

As the citizens had about retired to bed Thursday night after enjoying the holiday, they were aroused by the alarm of fire, and in a moment the whole lower end of the city was illuminated, and many feared a disastrous conflagration, everything was so dry and under-like. The night was perfectly calm, however, and the fire was confined to the property first attacked, the old Botsford homestead on the corner of St. John and Brunswick streets. The fire originated either by incendiarianism or from a carelessly thrown fire cracker, but which of these the cause will probably never be known. It started from the old barn facing on St. John street, and quickly communicated to the coach house and thence to the main house, these forming a sort of a court yard in which the flames played in their rapid and destructive course until all were ruined, the two former completely and the house beyond the advisability of repairing.

The residence was occupied by W. B. Phair and his family, Mrs. Geo. Botsford and her eldest daughter, Miss Besie Botsford, who is temporarily a cripple from a sprained foot, and they all had quite a narrow escape from the burning building. Mrs. Phair told THE HERALD that the first she knew of the threatened catastrophe, was when her husband awakened her with the cry, "the house is on fire." They had scarcely time to dress, and when their children were awakened, the fire had actually entered the little girls' room. All got out with scarcely enough clothes to cover them. Tender hands carried Miss Botsford to a place of safety, and her mother, who is quite distracted with grief over the loss of the old home, escaped with the loss of part of her clothing and some valuables which she fondly treasured. The furniture was got out in a much damaged condition. There was neither insurance on the building nor on Mr. Phair's furniture or anything about the place, and the loss is keenly felt by all parties concerned. The house up to May first, was occupied by Dr. Inch, but when Mr. Phair, who is building a house for himself on the Botsford property, moved at that time, he took the Botsford house for the summer, and Mrs. Botsford, whose home is now in Boston, came on with her daughter to spend the summer, taking rooms with the Phairs. Miss Lena Botsford arrived also on Wednesday from Boston, but was stopping with Miss Akerly. However, she lost a few valuable articles, including part of her wardrobe.

The fire attracted people from all parts of the city, and made a great illumination, but the firemen were equal to the emergency, and crushed it out before it could spread to adjoining buildings; but had a high wind prevailed at the time the results might have been very disastrous.

The Botsfords found a home at Mrs. T. C. Allen's, and the Phairs are at Mr. Phair's mother's on King street. The house destroyed is said to be nearly a century old, and was formerly the property of Mrs. Botsford's father, H. G. Clapp, for many years registrar of deeds for York county. It is probable as the land is advertised for sale, it will fall into the hands of some person who will erect a handsome residence on it. The lot is one of the most beautiful and convenient in the city, and it is said that at one time the Rev. Father McDevitt thought of securing it as the site for a new Roman Catholic church.

J. H. Hawthorn and A. E. Masie were standing near the former's home on Brunswick street when the fire broke out, and were the first to alarm the firemen. They broke open the front door and Mr. Hawthorn carried Mrs. Phair's baby out.

Mr. Phair said to THE HERALD last night that when he entered his daughters' room to get their things, the flames were coming through the window, which had fallen in.

H. B. Rainsford, Capt. Cropley, Thomas Roberts and James Lynn, all of whom live very near the scene of the fire, were among the earliest on the ground. They all agree that the flames appeared to burst out in an instant. No. 4 hose company, Capt. Butler, was the first detachment of the fire brigade on the spot, and they had water on five minutes after the first alarm struck.

The H. L. and P. company, No. 5 and No. 2 hose companies soon arrived and No. 1 was not far behind. The entire department responded promptly and the general opinion is that the fire was well handled.

THE UNIVERSITY SPORTS.

Pleasant Weather, a Good Audience and Some Record Breaking.

Beautiful weather marked the Queen's birthday, and to none was it more welcome than to the University students who held their annual athletic sports on the terrace during the afternoon. There was a large audience present and the contests were generally quite spirited, although some of them dragged and taxed the patience of the crowd. The 71st Batt. band, resplendent in their new uniforms, played a good program during the afternoon. Governor and Mrs. Fraser were among the interested spectators of the sport, and many of the St. John visitors were present on the grounds.
