On 279 Special Trains,
C. G. Railways

Up to March 1st 757,400 Troops have travelled over Government Railways.

Thousands arrive each week at Halifax and are sent forward to Dispersal Areas.

Since the war began in 1914 up to March 1st, when S.S. Belgic disembarked her returned soldier passengers at Halifax 757,400 troops have been carried on special trains over the Canadian Government Railways.

The first train which carried troops over the Government Railways the year the war was declared was numbered one and all special troop trains to and from Halifax since that time have been numbered consecutively. The last train from the Belgic was on Saturday No. 1279. Each train averages about twelve cars with an average of 50 men to a car, which figures up a total of 757,400 men carried. Of course in addition to this thousands of soldiers have journeyed between Montreal and Halifax by regular trains during the past four years.

The movement of troops back to Canada is now approaching its greatest activity. Last Sunday 5000 arrived at Halifax by the transports Lapland and Belgic and fifteen special trains were despatched westward inside of fourteen hours.

S. S. Megantic with soldiers and dependants arrived Wednesday and S. S. Adriatic is due Sunday. The movement of returning them is to be kept up actively all summer.

Story of Death of Uganda Martyrs

The Croix publishes an account of the heroic martyrdom of those young negroes, known as the Uganda martyrs, after the narration written thirty years ago by Mgr. Livinhac, who at the time headed a mission of the "White Fathers" in equatorial Africa.

The realistic story follows: "It was in 1886. Deceived by cunningly artfully directed against the Christians, the King of Uganda, Mousanga, until then favorable to the Christian religion, began by sending to death his privy councillor, Joseph M. Cassa, then two or three other Christians of his court, who, according to him, were guilty of the sole crime of "praying." This was the signal for a general persecution; the King declared that all who prayed were to be slaughtered.

"The most worthy of interest among the victims of this sanguinary madness were the King's pages. Their chief, Charles Longanga, a young man twenty years old, was separated from his companions, probably to shield them against his influence.

"He was slowly burned alive; while stirring the fire the executioner would say to him: "Come on! Let God take you out of the fire!"

"You poor fool," answered the martyr, "you do not know what you are speaking about. At this very moment you are only pouring water on my body, but come day to come the Lord you are insulting will dip you in real fire."

"The three youngest pages, Simeon Sebonta, Denys Kamouka, and Ousabe, drew forth the hangman's pity. He said to them: "Simply state that you will pray no more, and the Kabek (King) will pardon you."

"We shall never cease praying as long as we live," answered the children.

"The hangman did not insist any longer, trusting they would give in at the sight of the others' torture. They were all led together to Namougongo hill. They stood quietly.

"A great quantity of dry reeds had been heaped up on the summit of the hill. Of these the executioners made big bundles. In each one of the bundles they hid and bound up one of their victims. As they did not make one for little Simeon Sebonta, this latter, thinking himself thrown aside, exclaimed: "Where is my bundle? Everyone has his and I also must have mine."

"They pretended to comply with his demands; he was bound like his companions, but was put aside together with Denys Kamouka and the little Ousabe.

"Among the victims was the executioner's own son. After trying all in his power to make him apostatize the executioner said to him: "My son, simply allow me to hide you in my house."

"Father," answered the child, "you are only the King's slave. If you do not kill me you will get into trouble. I know the reason of my death; it is my faith. Father, kill me!"

"Then the executioner ordered one of his men to take the cudgel and deal the child a heavy blow on the nape of the neck in order to prevent him from being burned alive. Afterwards the body was hid among the reeds and heaped up with the others.

"After this first execution the bundles were set on fire on the side of the victim's feet, so as to lengthen their sufferings and in the hope of getting several of them to apostatize. Idle hopes. The martyrs opened their mouths indeed, but it was only to recite together in a loud voice the prayers they had learned from the missionaries. Half an hour later the reeds were burned up, and one could perceive but a line of charred bodies covered with ashes.

"The three smallest boys were still left. They were saying Minard's Liniment relieves Distemper.

Why spare us? We are Christians just as the others were. Their tormentors were astounded by their contempt for death.

"The three pages, however, were only sent to prison. They only lived to bear testimony of the courage of the martyrs who perished before them.

"A victim of the persecution, Matthias Mouroomba, who was a judge, was tortured with a particular cruelty. The executioner broke his feet and his hands, tore from his back thongs of skin which were roasted before his eyes. One may guess how long and cruel were Matthias' agonies.

"When Matthias' sister heard of the glorious end of her brother she ran to meet the executioners, saying: "You have killed my brother because he used to pray. I also pray and must be killed."

"Such courage astounded the barbarians, and they dared not touch her. The Lord left her in this world to act as a second mother to Matthias' orphan children.

"The blood of martyrs is the germ wherewith Christians shall spring." Today Uganda number 98,000 Christians and 112,000 catechumens."

History of Famous Bible

Father Sgranes, C. M. F., writing in the Tidings, Los Angeles, says that more than four centuries ago—to be exact, on March 22, 1520—the first polyglot Bible in the world, the Complutensian, was published at Alcala de Henares, Spain. This polyglot Bible was edited and published under the immediate supervision and at the "Complutum," which is the Latin name for Alcala. The Complutensian Bible was edited and published under the immediate supervision and at the entire expense of the celebrated statesman, Fray Francisco, Cardinal Ximenez de Cisneros, Archbishop of Toledo and Primate of Spain. The Cardinal was born at Torrelaguna in New Castile, Spain, in 1436, and died at Roa, near Valladolid, on November 8, 1517. It may be interesting to notice here that the Complutensian Bible was finished July 10, 1517, four months before the death of its editor; and yet, strange to say, it was not published until March 23, 1520. It has never been known why this work remained unpublished for nearly three years after its completion was perfected. To that great patron of scholars and artists, Pope Leo X., the glory belongs of having saved the Complutensian Bible from oblivion. In his famous Motu Proprio, "Dudum Belatione," dated March 22, 1520, Leo ordered the executors of the last will of the Cardinal to publish the Complutensian Bible at once.

Having founded the University of Alcala, Cisneros employed many of the scholars forming the staff of that educational institution to complete the gigantic task of compiling this work. His object was to revive the languishing study of the Sacred Scriptures. The greatest Biblical scholars all over Europe were also called upon to lend their talents in the edition of the work. Cardinal Cisneros furnished his co-laborers with accurate printed texts of the Old Testament in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, and the New Testament in Greek and Latin. This polyglot Bible contains also the Chaldaic Targum of the Pentateuch, and an interlinear Latin translation of the Greek Old Testament. The work comprises six large volumes, the last being made up of Hebrew and Chaldaic dictionaries, a Hebrew grammar and a Greek dictionary. The number of copies first issued was limited. Some authorities place their number at six hundred. Quite naturally these copies soon found, as they should have, their places in the principal libraries of Europe, subsequently considerably influencing later editions of the Bible, and being used by world-famed Bible scholars in their exegeses.

Suffered Great Agony Front Pains in Stomach.

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arise from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, sour stomach, bilious spells, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, water brash, etc., you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. You will be surprised how quickly they will fix you up.

Mrs. M. A. Burger, Hardisty, Alta., writes: "For over two years I suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. A friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials, but before I had used one I found much relief. I continued until I used six vials, and they have completely relieved me.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are small and easy to take and do not grip, purge and sicken like most laxatives. Price 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cisneros secured the best manuscript accessible to serve as a basis of his text. Leo X., in his extreme munificence and lavish generosity, loaned him the Vatican manuscripts. Traces of such manuscripts may be discerned, particularly in the Greek text. The Complutensian Bible published the first printed edition of the Greek Old Testament, the one which was commonly used and reproduced before the appearance of the edition of Sixtus V. in 1587. Subsequent editions, like the Paris Polyglot, the London Polyglot, and especially the Antwerp Bible, sometimes called the "Biblica Regia," because it was issued under the auspices of King Philip II, were based on the Complutensian Bible.

Fifteen years, 1502-17, were required for the compilation of this work, which was most fittingly dedicated to Pope Leo X. It was finished, as above stated, July 10, 1517, four months before the death of its illustrious author. Its estimated cost was one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. So great was the expense entailed that the executors formally declared that the proceeds secured did not reimburse the outlay. The cost of a single volume at present ranges all the way from two thousand to five thousand dollars. The crowning glory of the noble achievement of the immortal Cisneros, the well-known publisher, the Spanish savant and litterateur, the late Marcelino Menendez y Pelayo, says that the Complutensian Bible is a lasting monument of eternal glory to Spain, a beacon light reared at the beginning of the sixteenth century to illumine all future ages."

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES FOR NEARLY A YEAR.

The nasty little pimples that come out on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying. They are little irritating reminders to you that you should take a few bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters.

When B. B. B. makes your blood pure, the pimples will vanish and your skin becomes soft and clear.

Mrs. James Williams, Waterford, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with pimples for nearly a year. I used different kinds of remedies but there was no cure. A friend, dropped in one day and told me I should try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did so and used three bottles, and found the pimples were all disappearing from my face, and now I have a clear complexion again."
