It Takes Good Wheat to Make Good Flour

Anyone with off-grade wheat must not expect to sell it for anything but feed. We are now negotiating with outside feed brokers, but they are unwilling to make a bid worth while, until weather conditions permit of the storage and handling of this sort of grain in comparative safety. However, we might add that a few selected samples we are milling, are producing a flour which has never been excelled in our milling experience.

Canadian Domestic War Loan

CANADIAN FORD COMPANY WILLING TO SUBSCRIBE A MILLION DOLLARS WHEN THE ISSUE IS MADE—MR. FORD IS PRO-BRITISH

He Blames Prussian Militarism for the War, and Believes That Germany Must Be Beaten
From the Toronto Daily News.

Detroit, October 20—Mr. Henry Ford is pro-British.

"Tell the people of Canada for me that I am with them heart and soul," he said to Mr. Gordon M. MacGregor, head of the Canadian Ford Motor Company.

Then he added, for his mind is full of the latest child of his genius—light, cheap tractors. "Tell them that on my return from California I will devote my attention to the tractor business to give them something that will do more for Canada than any machine that has ever been introduced into the country."

Mr. MacGregor did not tell the people of Canada that Mr. Ford was with them heart and soul because he feared that it might affect detrimentally the business of the Ford Company with the German-Americans in the United States. Mr. Ford's statement is now published for the first time.

Pro-Ally Sentiments

"You may say that Mr. Ford has expressed the strongest pro-Ally sentiments to officials of the firm, and to hundreds of his friends. There is absolutely no doubt as to the sentiments of his heart. His father was born in Ireland and all his ancestors came from the British Isles. It is bred in the bone of the man."

Mr. MacGregor was unwilling to come out with the statement lest it should embarrass the company on the other side. His interviewer urged that it should do so as a matter of simple justice to Mr. Ford. He consented.

"He frankly admitted to me that Prussian militarism, was the worst form of militarism, that Prussian Militarism was chiefly to blame for this war, and that Germany had to be licked," said one of these men who had taken Mr. Ford to task when he returned from his eastern trip.

"Why I am as much pro-Ally as you are," Mr. Ford protested to a Canadian friend.

The Famous Remark

Mr. Ford has expressed indignation that his now famous remark about the treatment he would advise for the loan commissioners had ever got into the newspapers. It had never been intended as a public utterance.

During his return journey from the east, Mr. Ford was chatting confidentially with half a dozen friends on the station at Albany, N. Y. Never thinking but that he was entirely among friends, Mr. Ford made the statement without much thought in the course of conversation. Someone saw fit, without Mr. Ford's permission, to give it to the newspapers.

Opposed to War Loans

However much Canadians may disagree with Mr. Ford's views, in common justice it should be made plain that Mr. Ford publicly expressed his opposition to war loans at least as early as last April, before there was any suggestion that the Allies would seek to float such a loan in the United States. His remark, privately made with regard to this loan in particular was in accord with his previously expressed views on war in general. In fact Mr. Ford said to his friends: "If the loan were for Germany I should oppose it ten times more strongly."

The chief connection between the United States and the Canadian companies is that the cars bear Mr. Ford's name. He himself owns only 25 per cent. of the stock of the Canadian concern. The majority of it is held by Mr. MacGregor and his relations.

Take Canada's Bonds.

So little weight do Mr. Ford's views with regard to the war loan carry in the Canadian Company that one of the largest stockholders has taken $50,000 of the loan stock, through the one bank in Detroit which is taking subscriptions. The Dodge Brothers recently disposed of their Canadian stock in New York. By the way, the transfer was made at $1,500, which shows that Mr. Ford's utterances have not affected the price. It was transferred to a Mr. Fuller, who has been largely instrumental in arranging subscriptions to the allied loan.

Further, "If the Canadian Government makes a flotation, the Canadian Ford Company will take a million dollars worth of the bonds," said Mr. MacGregor to the Daily News.

Big Plant in England

Mr. Ford has a dream, it is said—and Mr. Ford's dreams have a way of coming true—that his company will erect a huge plant in England, where Ford cars may be made from the ore up, that the money needed in England may remain in England.

Among the directors of the Canadian Ford Company who have gone to the front are Colonel Robinson, of the local regiment, and Captain W. L. MacGregor. Twenty-five officials of the company have been allowed time to go to the front as officers, and three hundred of the men have gone. Four of the five salesmen from the Winnipeg branch went with the 1st Contingent.

Mr. Ford admits he often does not stop to think. He is a great-hearted man, who sincerely yearns to "help the other fellow," his favorite slogan. He is a dreamer of dreams, one of which is peace. Ill-advised he may be, but antagonistic to Canada or the cause of the Allies emphatically he is not.
