PROMISED TO REFORM.

The Fair Ingersoll Kleptomaniac Given Her Liberty—Will Return Home.

The police magistrate's court this morning was a short one, and an interesting one. The case before him with very little ceremony. Three drunks were allowed to go with a word of warning. Ada Fotheringham, alias Munroe, of Ingersoll, came up again on information laid by Miss Bertha Hodge, Miss Eva Crawford, Miss Jesse Crawford and Miss Lizzie Gilmour, who charged her with stealing their clothing.

Mr. McKillop, on behalf of the crown, pleaded for the unfortunate girl, and asked that she be allowed to go on suspended sentence on condition that she promise to return to her mother and brothers and place herself under the control of Rev. Mr.
Hutt, Presbyterian minister, of Ingersoll.

The Police Magistrate—I might be more lenient if the cases were not so many. However, if she promises to do as you say, I'll let her go.

Mr. McKillop—I think she will.
She was then discharged. She will go to her home again, where an effort will be made to break her off her habits. She feels her position keenly, as do her relatives, for whom the accuses have expressed much sympathy.
