The enemy is straining every nerve, but is being attacked as never before. From the coast to the trenches of Northern France our flowing streams of khaki are pouring in a literal flood of fire on the enemy. "Modern warfare is terrible and no offensive is possible without the exaction of a dreadful toll.

"Many of our regiments suffered heavily as they advanced almost with out cover in the face of a murderous enemy fire, the machine guns in particular wreaking awful havoc. We must face the truth bravely of the heavy price we must pay and the nation must brace itself to the inexorable Official Statement.

The British official statement issued tonight reads:

"As a result of violent bomb fighting we made further progress at certain points in the main battle area. Low clouds interfered with aeroplane work, but in the Bapaume area one of our machines, dropping to three hundred feet, successfully bombed a train from which German reinforcements were alighting.

"In another area a British heavy battery secured direct hits on a German battery and a battalion in column, inflicting many casualties. "In other parts of our line the sit-

PARIS, July 6 .- Last night was generally quiet north and south of the River Somme, says today's official statement of the war office.

There were a few local engagements north of the Sommes during the night, in which the Germans captured two small woods a kilometre north of Hem. The French also captured a wood. South of the Somme the night passed quiet. A German counter-attack on Belloy was repulsed easily

The French have captured 76 cannon and several hundred machine guns. There was no infantry fighting on the Verdun front. The war office says the Germans are attempting to bombard the cathedral at Verdun.

the booty taken by the French troops in the fighting at the Somme brings to light many curious facts. In the Mereaucourt woods a heavy German PRISONERS REACH 235,000 battery was found completely dis-mounted. The battery commander's shelter alone remained intact.

The luxury of the arrangements in the German positions on the Santerre plateau showed that they were considered impregnable.
