

LEAGUE NEEDS POWER

Cecil Declares League of Nations' Scope Too Limited.

African Delegate Reported Worn Out by Assembly Labors.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 1.—(By Canada Press Cable).—The Sunday Observer gives prominence to an interview obtained by its Geneva correspondent with Lord Robert Cecil, represented South Africa at the League of Nations.

Robert Cecil is described as worn out, owing to his strenuous work of all the delegates to the assembly. Lord Robert expresses the view that the assembly just concluded, marks a tremendous advance on its predecessors and declares that nobody can retain the smallest misgiving of the league's permanence and progressive development.

What has been more striking than the demonstration of the assembly's need of fuller power from powers concerned. He urged the support of the league's machinery in Whitehall, which at present appeared unfavorably with the action bestowed in French official circles, the result of which was that French delegation to the assembly greatly strengthened.

Lord Robert Cecil enlarged upon suggestion of a league air force, emphasizing the earmarking of every portion of its air force, the service of the league in the event of desirability of checking unprovoked aggression by one state against another.

He thought that this was the most effective way of deterring aggressors. Nevertheless, he was not reluctant to suggest that the efficacy of the league rested on military force.

You know about the horn of plenty; but the horn of too much is always blowing his.

ER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with irregularities and weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician, but finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."

Mrs. M. SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact, women should consider and that is this. Women suffering from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing its merit.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound?

KAISER FINDS SEED OF WORLD WAR HERE.

ONCE the magnitude of Pan-Germanism dawned on the English and French diplomats, once they became aware of the lengths to which Germany was willing to go, they realized the necessity of strengthening their position, and therefore made overtures to the United States, which resulted, probably before the summer of the year 1897, in an understanding between the three countries. There seems to be no doubt whatever that no papers of any sort were signed, that no pledges were given which circumstances would not justify any one of the contracting parties in denying or possibly repudiating. Nevertheless, an understanding was reached that in case of a war begun by Germany or Austria for the purpose of executing Pan-Germanism, the United States would promptly declare in favor of England and France, and would do her utmost to assist them.—Page 139, Chapter X, of Pan-Germanism, by Roland G. Usher.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

WHEN I, with Hollmann met the chancellor, in order to discuss the Russian claim to Kiaochow, the prince listened to the reading of it with his little ironical smile, and remarked that he had been unable to find any jurist at the foreign office who could tell him anything about this wonderful claim. Was the man in a hurry to do so? Admiral Hollmann declared that he, in all his experience of foreign service, had never heard of it; that it was nonsense, and an invention of Muraviev, whose only motive was unwillingness to have some other nation settle on the shores of the bay. I advised that Privy Councillor of the Admiralty Perels, one of the most famous living experts on international maritime law, and an acknowledged authority in this domain, be asked to deliver an opinion, in order to clarify the question. This was done. The opinion of Muraviev's contention to pieces, corroborated that of Hollmann, and completely did away with the legend about the "right of first anchorage."

Months elapsed; my August, 1897, visit to Peterhoff was imminent. In agreement with the prince, my uncle, I decided to discuss the entire matter in person and frankly with the czar, and if possible put an end to Muraviev's notes and evasions. The talk took place at Peterhoff. The czar stated that he had no interest in the territory south of the Tientsin-Peking line, which meant that there was no reason why he should place obstacles in our path in Shantung; that his interest was concentrated upon the territory on the Yalu around Port Arthur, etc., now that the English had made difficulties for him at Mokpo; that he would in fact be pleased if Germany should locate herself in future on the other side of the Gulf of Chih-li as Russia's welcome neighbor.

Afterwards I had a talk with Muraviev. He employed all his arts, wriggled back and forth in his statements, and finally brought up his famous "right of first anchorage." That was all I wanted. I now passed to the offensive myself, striking out at him squarely with the opinion delivered by Perels. When I had told him, finally, as the czar desired, the result of the conversations between us two sovereigns, the diplomat was even more embarrassed, lost his assumed calm, and capitulated. Thus was the soil prepared, politically speaking. In the autumn came the news from Bishop Anzer of the murder of the two German Catholic missionaries in Shantung. The entire German Catholic world, particularly the "colonialists" in the Central party, demanded energetic measures. The chancellor proposed to me immediate intervention. While I was engaged in the winter hunting at Lotalingen I consulted with him in one of the little towers of the castle there as to what steps were to be taken. The prince proposed to distrust Prince Henry of Prussia, who was present, with the command of the squadron that was to be sent out to reinforce the East African division.

Americans on international questions affecting the United States. Professor Usher, in his book published in 1913, made known for the first time, the existence and contents of an "agreement" or "secret treaty" between England, America and France, dating from the spring of 1897. In this it was agreed that, in case Germany or Austria, or both of them, should begin a war for the sake of "Pan-Germanism," the United States should at once declare in favor of England and France and go to the support of these powers with all its resources. Professor Usher cites at length all the reasons, including those of a colonial character, which inevitably imposed upon the United States the necessity of taking part, on the side of England and France, in a war against Germany, which Professor Usher, in 1913, prophesied as imminent!

The unknown author of "The Problem of Japan" went to the trouble of publishing in tabulated form the agreements between England, France and America in 1897, in order thereby to show, in a way easily understood, the extent of the reciprocal obligations. This chapter is extraordinarily worth reading; it gives a good glimpse into the preliminary history and preparation of the world war on the part of the Entente, which even at that time was uniting against Germany, although not yet appearing under the name of Entente Cordiale. The ex-diplomat remarks in this connection:

Here is a treaty that Professor Usher alleges to have been entered into as long ago as 1897, in which every phase of activity and participation in future events by England, France and the United States is provided for, including the conquest of the Spanish dependencies, control over Mexico and Central America, the opening of China and the annexation of coaling stations. And all these measures Professor Usher wishes us to believe were taken to defend the world against Pan-Germanism. It is unnecessary to remind Professor Usher or anybody else, for that matter, that Pan-Germanism, if we go so far as to assume that such a thing actually exists, had certainly never been heard of in 1897, at which time Germany had not yet adopted her program for a continental union on a large scale, the same having been bruited for the first time in 1898. If, therefore, it is true that England, France and the United States harbored the mutual designs imputed to them by Professor Usher, and entered into an alliance to accomplish them, it will scarcely do to attribute the conception of the idea and the stimulus to its consummation to so feeble a pretext as the rise of a Pan-Germanism.—From the Note to Chapter VIII, page 136.

Ex-councillor of Legation in the Far East. Published by C. L. Langenhuyzen, Amsterdam and Rotterdam, 1918.

This is truly amazing. A definite treaty of partition directed against Spain, Germany, etc., arranged even to minute details was planned between Gauls and Anglo-Saxons, in a time of the profoundest peace, and concluded without the slightest twinkle of conscience, in order to annihilate Germany and Austria and eliminate their competition from the world market! Seventeen years before the beginning of the world war this treaty was made by the united Anglo-Saxons, and its goal was systematically envisaged throughout this entire period! Now one can understand the agreed frankly with the opinion delivered by Perels. When I had told him, finally, as the czar desired, the result of the conversations between us two sovereigns, the diplomat was even more embarrassed, lost his assumed calm, and capitulated. Thus was the soil prepared, politically speaking. In the autumn came the news from Bishop Anzer of the murder of the two German Catholic missionaries in Shantung. The entire German Catholic world, particularly the "colonialists" in the Central party, demanded energetic measures. The chancellor proposed to me immediate intervention. While I was engaged in the winter hunting at Lotalingen I consulted with him in one of the little towers of the castle there as to what steps were to be taken. The prince proposed to distrust Prince Henry of Prussia, who was present, with the command of the squadron that was to be sent out to reinforce the East African division.

I laid stress upon the fact that this agreed entirely with my own view and, in conclusion, I summed up my standpoint once more for the ambassador. I told him that Germany was the only country in the world which, despite its colonial possessions and its rapidly growing commerce, possessed no coaling stations; that we were quite willing to acquire these with England's consent; that should she refuse to show a realization of our situation and fail to meet us halfway, we should be compelled to turn to some other great power, in order, with its help, to found settlements.

This talk, likewise, was fruitless. Finally, the negotiations with England were broken off, without result, in a rather impolite manner. Thereupon the chancellor and I decided to appeal to Russia.

The occupation of Kiao-Chau aroused surprise and anger in the English government. Having refused us her support, England had definitely reckoned on the belief that nobody would help Germany in attacking her goal. Now things had turned out differently, and there was no lack of recriminations from London. When the English ambassador took up this tone, he was referred to the conversation with me, and it was made clear to him that it was published in a work of the American, Professor Usher, of Washington University at St. Louis. Usher, like his former colleague, Professor John Bassett Moore, of Columbia University, New York, has often been called into question as an adviser on foreign policy by the state department, since he had been so often quoted by few other

HOPE TO INDUCE TURK WITHDRAWAL

France Insists On Turkish Recognition of Straits' Neutrality.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—France stands firmly by her decision taken with Great Britain and Italy last Saturday to insist upon Turkish recognition of the neutrality of the zones of the Straits, and while there is no question at the moment of military force to back up this attitude, the French government will exert its fullest influence to induce the Turks to withdraw. This was the view in official circles today.

France does not take such a critical view of the situation as does Great Britain, the belief being expressed that the strained relations between the Turks and the British in the Chanak zone can be settled without recourse to armed conflict. Officials here say the Turks have reason for alarm in the events which are now occurring in Eastern Thrace. Deportations of Mussulmans has already begun in Thrace, and the wholesale killing of Turkish subjects there is considered not improbable here. This, together with the determination of the Athens government to defend Thrace is reacting unfavorably on the Turkish attitude.

The view is expressed here that Great Britain should have seriously considered Kemal's proposal to withdraw from the zone if the British retired to the other side of the Straits.

ASSERTS NO CHANCE OF RECONCILIATION

Will Not Institute Divorce Proceeding Against Her Husband, Avows Mrs. Stillman.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Oct. 1.—There never can be a reconciliation between herself and James A. Stillman, Mrs. Anne U. Stillman said yesterday, on learning of the decision handed down in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., finding her son, baby Guy Stillman, legitimate and dismissing charges of misconduct made against her by her husband.

Mrs. Stillman received the news of her victory from a correspondent of the Canadian Press as she was hurrying by yacht down the St. Maurice River, from the Stillman camp at Grand Anse to summon medical aid for baby Guy, who is said to be seriously ill at camp.

The correspondent boarded the yacht from a tug and handed Mrs. Stillman news dispatches reporting the finding of the referee's decision. Mrs. Stillman was plainly overcome by emotion.

Asked if a reconciliation might be possible, Mrs. Stillman replied: "There is a French word which will be my answer, 'jamais' (never). Why 'jamais' you may ask; because the father of my son is dead. No real father could have hurt them so. It would not be fair. The French said at Verdun, 'le pas de la mort pas.' It was in this spirit that I waged my battle and it is this spirit that conquers."

Mrs. Stillman said she would not institute divorce proceedings against Mr. Stillman, because by so doing said, he would be able to legitimize the children of Florence Leeds, which would be to the detriment of her own children.
