Mr. Crothers' Joke. This memorandum was a dilapidated paper pasted together reading: "Memo, for A.B.," and contained several names with fied, was put out under an apple tree in his grounds for two weeks, and then sent with an anonymous letter to Hathaway's solici-tors as a joke to fool them, the A.B. being meant for Ingram.

This is the letter accompanying the Sir,—I notis that Ingram, when he was examined, said he had no papers or any election account of any money paid to anyone amined, said he had no papers or any elec-tion account of any money paid to anyone for votes. Here are some scraps pict up by me at the Tory clubrooms some time ago. I intended to send them some time ago. Now as Ingram lide, you show him up at the trial.

he will resign his seat in Parliament or that he proposes residing in England. Speaker White has decided that Hon. All the asset of the party in Speaker White has decided that Hon. Thomas McGreevy is entitled to his indemnity for the session, before McGreevy went home without drawing his indemnity or of it previously. There was no fund raised for corrupt practices. All the money expended was raised by the party in St. Thomas. He also denied the story that he had been supplied with money by Sir Charles Tupper in his life.

Charge 2, that W. H. Ingram and George ingram paid John Stutt, harness maker, Alvinston, his traveling expenses election day, was investigated and dismissed.
