SANGIR'S FLAMING DELUGE

TOWNS AND INHABITANTS BLOTTED OUT OF EXISTENCE.

North Tavas and Swallows People by the Hour. Latest Details of the Eruption of Sangir. The eruption of Sangir, which has been going on since the morning of July 27, is now in its most violent stage. The eruption is now in its most violent stage. The eruption is now in its most violent stage.

Without any warning signal, without any sign whatever of impending disturbance, the Sangir volcano burst forth on June 7, and within 24 hours the whole of the prosperous surrounding country was devastated.

The location of the crater is latitude 2 degrees 39 minutes north, longitude 125 degrees 29 minutes east. The western coast of Great Sangir Island is washed by the Colobes Sea, with the volcano passage on the northwestern side.

The island is one of a chain of islands near the Philippines. The first reports of the eruption was heard about 6 o'clock in the morning, and for four hours there was a continuous stream of fire and ashes belching forth.

After a slight relaxation a flood of fire again began, continuing two days, heavy rumblings being heard in the mountains. The eruption is now in its most violent stage.

Terrible thunderstorms had followed each other, hot showers of rain and lightning running down the mountains side rendered travelling unsafe, and those who were overtaken in their flight perished.

Reports from the natives indicate the most disastrous consequences. Whole villages are submerged and coconuts and nutmeg plantations everywhere are ruined.

THE LOSS OF A LITERARY CAMEL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A cow kicked herself into unending fame at the Chicago fair in 1871, and if civil war breaks out in Europe, which, according to dispatches from New South Wales, the foreign residents at San Francisco, a liter of pigs will be an innumerable cause of all the carnage and horror that may ensue.

For since the outbreak on the island several years ago, when the governments of Germany, Great Britain and the United States espoused the cause of Malesco and relegated Malesco to obscurity, the latter has been walking in the woods at Malis, six or seven miles from Apta. He has been in a chronic state of rebellion, not overt, but just rebellious. He wouldn't play with Malesco's crowd. Occasionally there would be a fight between small parties of the two factions of natives, but nothing serious occurred.

A few months ago, however, a German president of a letter of pigs, and as a result of this he was carried off by some of Malesco's followers. Involved in the strong sense of a principle, was expressed Chief Justice Cockburn, sympathizing with his countryman in the loss of the animal, was certainly not a party to the suspected parties, and gave it to a constable to serve. When the minion of law approached Malesco's camp he was met by a crowd of 200 or 300 armed with sticks. They suggested mildly but firmly that he was laboring under a misapprehension, that a pig didn't really want to serve the warrant, that he was proceeding as he was in order merely to satisfy his superior and not to get a pig glory into himself by effecting an arrest.

This actually seemed to be the constable's purpose, for he returned to Apta without either pig or prisoner. Naturally the owner of the animal was wroth and demanded that the full power of the army and navy be sent to capture Malesco's camp, that personal rights and the majesty of the law might be vindicated. Chief Justice Cockburn was inclined to insist upon the country's demand, but the loss of a few pigs, even if it were more or less mixed up with the abandonment of a principle, was not deemed of sufficient importance to precipitate active hostilities. Latest advice states that the matter was dropped and the indications were that trouble between the factions would be entirely avoided. But how the German is to be solved for the loss of the pig does not appear.

THE IRON HALL INVOLVEMENT
An Application for a Receivership Alarms the Members of the Order of the Iron Hall in this city are greatly excited, over the announcement that an application was made on Friday to the Superior Court, Indianapolis, for the appointment of a receiver, on the ground that the company was insolvent.

The feature of the application that caused most apprehension was the one making application for a receivership against Freeman Somerville of Philadelphia who is supreme justice and apparently the executive head of the organization.

It is charged that the company has appropriated the funds, with altering the books, and with taking at least $90,000 from the company's assets. It is also charged with failing to call a meeting of the Superior Council for some time past, and with failing to pay the salary of his secretary to $100,000.
