-Halifax meat dealers have raised the price of their best cuts of beef, owing to the advance in prices of the western beef in which many of the local meat dealers are large importers. The Herald states that three carloads of western beef are received in that city every week for the local dealers, costing $2000 a car, so that $6000 that should go into the pockets of the Nova Scotia farmers now gces to western provinces. The Herald attributes this condition of affairs to the tendency on the part of Nova Scotia farmers to export their raw products as hay and grain instead of feeding them to stock and thus feeding and enriching the soil. Whatever the reason, the statement of present conditions should make our farmers put on their "thinking caps." as also the fact that horses are being imported into the home provinces in large numbers every spring.
