ESSENCE OF PEPSINE

(FAIRCHILD)

POSITIVELY EFFICIENT

Superficially, Fairchild's Essence is a beautifully clear, bright fluid, remarkably agreeable in odor and taste; physiologically, it has the definite potent activities of the gastric juice; practically, it is of positive efficiency as a digestant, and corrective of gastric disorders, a vehicle for other remedies, a means of curdling milk for the preparation of junket and whey.

Obviously, the great agreeability of Fairchild's Essence contributes materially to its usefulness in all these directions, but efficiency is its fundamental quality.

Fairchild's Essence is obtained by direct extraction from the fresh stomach glands, is a genuine extract of the gastric juice, of prompt and reliable action for each of the purposes for which it is indicated, uniform in all its properties, and stable.

It is always important to specify Fairchild's Essence; the ordinary fluid preparations made from "pepsin"—the essence, elixir or wine, of variable qualities and more or less feeble activities—are but poor "make-shifts" for Fairchild's.
