

- (b) its laws and regulations relating to the admission to, remaining in, or departure from its territory of passengers, crew members and cargo, including mail (such as regulations relating to entry, clearance, transit, aviation security, immigration, passports, customs and quarantine) by the designated airlines of the other Contracting Party and by or on behalf of those passengers and crew members, and applicable to the cargo, including mail, carried by the designated airlines of the other Contracting Party, upon transit of, admission to, departure from and while within that territory.

2. In the application of the laws and regulations, and procedures referred to in paragraph 1, a Contracting Party shall, under similar circumstances, accord to the designated airlines of the other Contracting Party treatment no less favourable than that accorded to its own airlines or any other airline engaged in similar international air services.

ARTICLE 7

Safety Standards, Certificates and Licences

1. The Contracting Parties confirm that certificates of airworthiness, certificates of competency and licences, issued or rendered valid by the aeronautical authorities of one Contracting Party and still in force, shall be recognized as valid by the aeronautical authorities of the other Contracting Party for the purpose of operating the agreed services provided that those certificates or licences were issued or rendered valid pursuant to, and in accordance with, as a minimum, the standards established under the Convention. The Contracting Parties further confirm that their aeronautical authorities have the right, however, to refuse to recognize, for the purpose of flights above their own territory, certificates of competency and licences granted to their own nationals by the other Contracting Party.

2. If the privileges or conditions of the certificates or licences referred to in paragraph 1, issued by the aeronautical authorities of one Contracting Party to any person or designated airline or in respect of an aircraft used in the operation of the agreed services, should permit a difference from the minimum standards established under the Convention, and which difference has been filed with the International Civil Aviation Organization, the other Contracting Party may request consultations between the aeronautical authorities of the Contracting Parties in accordance with Article 20 (Consultations) with a view to clarifying the practice in question.
