FRUIT INDUSTRY STILL VIGOROUS

Every Prospect of Recovering, Says President at Growers' Convention.

Tho the winter of 1917-18 was a bad one for fruit growers generally, yet it was stated yesterday by President R. W. Grierson of Oshawa to the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario, which is holding its fifty-ninth annual convention at the Carls-Rite Hotel, that there is every prospect of recovering the lost ground, both from weather and the effects of the war.

'So very few apple orchards have had the necessary attention during the war that many will never-recover, and it looks as if prospects are good for the man who has taken care of his trees," said President Grierson, asserting increased production to be still a national duty on account of the comparative duty on account of the comparative cheapness with which the crop could be conducted in this province. One of the things which was promised the growers was the resumption of the fruit, flower and honey show, which had been in abeyance since the beginning of the way the way the provision services are interested. the war.
