All Canadian Refineries Closed.

He said that there were nine refineries in Canada before the combination was effected, but that most of them had been since demolished. One owner of a refinery had told him that be had received $65,000 for a plant that was not worth to exceed $10,000. This consolidation had been effected in 1898, and since then the price of oil had advanced from 12½c to 17c per gallon. He was satisfied that the Standard Company received feet that the Standard Company received that the Standard Company received the profession of the railroad companies, but he did not have the proof that such was the case. He thought the company had made immense profits in Canada within the past three months, and said the Standard people preferred handling the Canadiam product there, because it was more profitable than the American.

Nov. 1st:

London, Nov. 7, 1899.—Your Ministers' generous offer to send without delay a second contingent for service in South Africa has received the attentive consideration of the Secretary of State for War and his military advisors, but they regret that under existing circumstances they are unable to accept it. The offer will, however, certainly be borne in mind, and Her Majesty's Government will have no hesitation in availing themselves of it, should future events make it desirable to do so. Her Majesty's Government attach great importance to this fresh proof of Canadian sympathy and good will, and desire to express their grateful appreciation of it.

South Ontario Must Speak.

The first speaker was W. F. Maclean, M. P., who at the outset referred to the politics of the province in view of the fact that a byc-election is about to be held is South Ontario. He declared that the courts had shown that an organized system of corruption had been at work in the province and that it worked for the interest of the Liberal party. This being the case it rested on the public of South Ontario, irrespective of party alliance, to put Jown this corruption, and the only way frey could do it was to vote against Mr. bryden, who was a member of the Government which had profited by the machine. If the people of South Ontario neglected to do this things would go from bad to worse, and men who were working toward improving the public life of this country would be discouraged. He said the eyes of all Canada were turned toward South Ontario at this juncture. Mr. Maclean then went into Dominion politics, and the hypocrisy of the Liberals in regard to protec-

Sir wilfrid Laurier had claimed to have increased the purchase of our products by England. The reverse was the fact, and the United States were selling more to England than ever.

How Liberals Changed.

the text of the answer received by His Excellency from Her Majesty's Government How Liberals Changed.

Mr. Foster next went into the policy—the declared policy—of the Liberals when out of office, that they would discriminate against England in order to get us the sixty million market in the United States. Now they were saying the United States market did not amount to much, and that the British market was everything. The Liberals had declared against the increase of the public debt, and in office they had increased it. They had got into power by deliberate lying to the people. Sir Wilfrid had declared he was an English Liberal. The fact was that no English Liberal could remain in public life a day after getting into power and then repudlating all their pledges. in reply to the offer of a second contingent, sent by the Canadian Government on

There were round-table neetings of Globe directors, men who were owners of the Crow's Nest coal lands, and there was a connection between the big subsidies given the Crow's Nest Pass Railway and the coal lands that had fallen into the hands of Globe directors. Mr. Foster went fully into the South Africa contingent and the conduct of Mr. Tarte, who had tried to shelter himself behind the French-Canadians. He aroused the patriotic feelings of the meeting.
