ANTI-CLERICALS SCORE

ALL BUT TWO MINISTERS

Rest of French Cabinet Stay Away From Service in Honor of Leo.

Paris, Aug. 2.—It is not without a small amount of humiliation that a French writer is forced to confess to strangers that the chief political event of the last week was the discussion as to whether or not the ministers should attend the funeral service celebrated at Notre Dame in honor of Leo XIII.

Everywhere, in Paris as in other cities, the representatives of the anti-clerical, schismatic or even pagan powers considered it their duty to assist at the ceremonies. From this we may conclude that all the peoples of the earth officially united in this mourning.

It seems strange that the French government should be the only exception. Not only does it consider the Pope as a sovereign, but the ambassador of the Pope, the Cardinal Ximenes, is a member of the cabinet.

But we are burdened by our anti-clerical, who are only copy-right clerical, and who seem to be bent upon themselves to revive all the previous errors of the latter party.

In former times the clerical absolutely refused official honors to those who died outside the pale of the Church, to-day the anti-clerical refuse similar honors to those who die in the sanctity of the Church.

A notable group. The most rabid among them form a group about the paper called L'Action, whose editor is a renegade Catholic priest, the former Abbe Charbonnel.

They threatened to hiss the members if they went to the funeral service held by the Archbishop of Paris at Notre-Dame. Knowing that they kept their word, having already incited riots at the "Fete de Dieu" procession, some were intimidated by their threats, and many of the ministers remained away.

Some, like M. Combes, did not even send a representative; others, like M. Chaumet, sent their secretaries in their stead. Only two were present—M. Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who did not allow the diplomatic corps to figure in the ceremony, and General Andre, who was in full uniform, and wore that day for the first time his new cross of Commander of the Legion of Honor.

At the same time precautions had been taken to avoid any upsurge of feeling by having a sufficient force of police present.

Nevertheless, General Andre was hissed by a few individuals, who were instantly arrested. Since that day the clerical have not ceased calling General Andre a tippler, while the anti-clerical, see in him an ridiculous popinjay. His only patrons are the unfortunately small minority of sensible people. All of which does not alter the fact that M. Delcasse and General Andre did a brave deed.

It is also true that the situation is ridiculous, when the ministers attend at the Pope's funeral service as an act of heroism, when a few days before everybody thought it perfectly proper that the government should be represented at the mass celebrated in memory of King Alexander and Queen Olga.

The primary elections continue to show the trend of popular feeling, and still the reaction has not yet set in. The government is threatened with a punishment for the expulsions of the religious congregations.

Reform. This week also saw the dawn of a university reform. The principal speech during the distribution of prizes at the University of Paris was made by a professor of English, and this was not done as a tribute in honor of the English, but because of a new tendency in the university, which favors living languages in preference to dead languages.

The Latin thesis is no longer obligatory in obtaining the degree of bachelors, and can be replaced by a thesis in a living tongue. We cannot blame this tendency, as it is in itself a better adaptation to the needs of the present. It is certain that we need more people capable of writing English and German than we do those capable of writing Latin.

Latin culture will still remain the basis of a literary education, but this summi need not be feared by a crowd. A chosen few will suffice.

Premier Balfour's Appeal. Finds Slow Response for Funds to Investigate Cancer.

London, Aug. 2.—Mr. Balfour on Thursday made, before an audience of less than fifty persons, an appeal which he hoped would reach the forty million inhabitants of Great Britain. The Research Fund, to which only 213 people have so far contributed, although Mr. Balfour said, there was hardly a single person in the British Isles, who, either in his own person, or in the person of somebody dear to him, was not directly interested in the successful result of the investigations which the fund is intended to further.

Only about half of the $500,000 which the fund has required has so far been subscribed.

Mr. Balfour hoped that the future could be looked to with the knowledge that an assured financial basis, which would be the best guarantee of ultimate success, had been obtained. The appeal was on behalf of a living tongue, and this was not done as a tribute in honor of the English, but because of a new tendency in the university, which favors living languages in preference to dead languages.

Swimming Teacher Drowned. Tried to Save a Bather and Both Went Down.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—(Special)—Prof. Lea, a famous swimming teacher, was drowned late yesterday morning while attempting to save Armand Dupuis, who had been bathing at St. Helen's Island, Sea Point, from drowning. The drowning man clung to his would-be rescuer and both sank.

The President Sarmiento was built by the well-known shipyard firm of Messrs. Laird of Birkenhead, England. It is of steel, is 5500 tons, and carries a crew of 550 men, including naval cadets, of 5500 souls.

Had Royal Visitors. Lisbon, Aug. 2.—King Charles, in the uniform of an admiral, the Prince of Asturias and Premier Ribera yesterday visited the American squadron here.

There'll Be Something Doing Soon. New Orleans, Aug. 2.—W. P. Brown and Frank B. Hayne, the leaders of the bull club in cotton here, last night understood to be in connection with the August deal in cotton.

HERBERT HENDERSON, CRAWLING UNDER

Cars at the Junction, Has Leg Severed.

Says They Are So Different From English Might Be 10,000 Miles Away.

New York, Aug. 2.—The Herald's London correspondent writes of the King's visit to Ireland in the following strain: No English king prior to Edward VII. was ever west of the Shannon. In Connemara, as in Dublin, the royal visit has been a triumphal progress. The King and Queen obliterated from their program anything of the sectarian bias, which has sent many priests to America, gave the greatest satisfaction to Roman Catholics. Their Majesties were presented with an address of welcome, which the King took and examined very carefully before handing it to Lord Dudley, to whom he said: "Take care of that. I value it above anything I have received."

One of the things upon which the King commented in Dublin was the barefooted children in the slums. "How is to be accounted for?" he asked, in the King's own words, "the barefooted children in the slums?"

His Majesty received a characteristic Irish response from a Connemara peasant whom she visited near Sligo. "It was a wretched clay boggin, with a thatched roof and smoke dried rafters, where Patrick Kerrigan, eighty years of age, has lived more than fifty years. It is the cabin of a King and Queen walking through the bogs, their passage being challenged by the old hag, who says: 'Shure an' if there were more holes in the roof it would be much colder.'"

Another Irish woman who had the honor of a visit from the King told the correspondent that she was a grand man, and that she was not a taste or pride in it.

OLD MAN BROWN IN MILK VAT.

The Junction Wins From Weston at Lacrosse-Gun Club's Shooting Box Opened.

Toronto Junction, Aug. 2.—Herbert Henderson, an employe of the Huron Foundry Co., was crossing the C.P.R. tracks between the Junction and Weston about 10:30 last night, when he was caught by a train and had one of his legs taken off above the knee. The C.P.R. yards are very crowded with cars just now and Henderson was in the act of crawling under a train engine backed up to the street and started their backwater. Mr. Mayvey was summoned, and, after attending to his injuries, had him removed to the Western Hospital. Henderson's home is in Aurora.

Denis Degan, a man about 50 years of age, residing in Weston, was found in a milk vat yesterday evening. Degan was subject to epileptic attacks, and it is thought that he may have been suddenly seized and fallen into the vat. The remains were taken to the coroner's inquest room, where Coroner Crawford determined to hold an inquest. Dr. Macnamara held a post-mortem examination and concluded that Degan had taken a fall while pouring milk into a pail and fell sideways into the vat, which was full of water. The lungs of the deceased were filled with water and death was due to drowning. The order for an inquest was issued, and the inquest was held at St. Helen's Church on Tuesday. Interment will take place at Forest Hill cemetery.
