

MODERN VIKINGS SIGHTED OFF COAST OF N.S.

Four Norsemen, in Tiny
Craft, Seen on Way to Philadelphia

HALIFAX, Aug. 1.—Captain T. Folger and his three companions who are making the 5000-mile voyage over the 1000-year-old Viking trail from Norway to America in their tiny open craft, the Leif Erikson, a replica of the ships that brought the Vikings ten centuries ago, were today well down the New England coast on their way to Philadelphia, reckoning from a report that reached this city today from an isolated fishing village on the Halifax county coast line, near which the voyagers passed last Wednesday.

A letter received in the city tonight from Captain W. L. Smith, Terrence Bay, stated that while fishing 17 miles off Sambro, at 7.30 o'clock last Wednesday morning, he had spoken to the strange craft from Norway and Captain Folger had asked him to report all on board well.

The four Norsemen who have made the first successful attempt to repeat the exploit of their intrepid ancestors, are Captain T. Folger, pilot, Johnsen, Møide, T. Thomassen and Kristian Andersen. They set out from Bergen early in the summer, following the pathway first discovered by Erik the Red, Leif's father, who established a settlement on Greenland, many centuries before Columbus made his voyage to America. They called at the Danish Faroe Islands, Iceland, Greenland and St. John's, Nfld., whence they sailed over a week ago planning to go direct to Philadelphia.

The Erikson is 45 feet long with a 13-foot beam and has compressed air safety tanks. It is modeled as near as possible to the lines of the Viking ships with towering gargoyle figurehead.

HISTORIC TRINITY ISSUES BOOKLET

Publication Tells of Many Memorials in Parish of Loyalists

A booklet of exceptional interest entitled "Trinity Church, Saint John, New Brunswick and its Memorials" has just been published. The archives committee of Trinity church corporation composed of H. A. Porter, Lt.-Col. Alexander McMillan and Lt.-Col. W. H. Harrison, K. C., was commissioned with the task of preparing the booklet and has admirably fulfilled the duties that were imposed. In the 35 pages of the booklet are found short and carefully prepared records of all of the very many memorials which enrich the fabric of Trinity church and which it is a unique interest among the churches of this province. The historic relics which it treasures are the Royal Coat of Arms taken from the Council Chamber of the Old State House in Boston and the communion plate bearing the royal cypher of King George III which was presented to the church in 1790 but is undoubtedly of greater antiquity concerning which it was once suggested that it was formerly used in King's Chapel, Boston. This suggestion is thought to have been disproved.

MILITARY COLORS
The colors of four military units have been placed in Trinity church for safe keeping and the oldest of these are the colors of the 2nd battalion, Saint John City Militia, which were presented to the battalion in Sept. 18, 1827.

The booklet is a fine example of the printer's art and is very fully illustrated. Specially noted among the Reynolds spoke on the subject and at the 11.15 o'clock mass the Litany of the Saints was chanted.

THE McMANUS IS DEAD IN NEW YORK

Political Leader Succumbs Suddenly Soon After Presiding at Meeting

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Thomas J. McManus, better known as The McManus, head of the family of that name, former state senator and Tammany leader of the Fifth Assembly District, Middle, died on Friday at his home, 462 West Forty-ninth street. He was 64 years old and for 25 years had been the absolute political ruler of the midtown section of Manhattan west of Broadway.

Death was attributed to high blood pressure. He was taken ill just before midnight on Thursday while presiding at a meeting of the Thomas J. McManus Association, the Tammany organization of the district, at 728 Ninth Avenue. He literally died in harness, as he would have wished, for he had attended a meeting of the Tammany executive committee but a few hours before.
