A Wish.

Dreary are the nights in winter, When the north winds blow, Shouting, skating at the easemen

Panting, sobbing through the darkness Like a child that grieves; Mosning at the doorway -creeping Low, about the eaves.

But to-night the snow is lying In a still moon-light-Oh, my Love-whom !leath has hidden, Visit me to-night !

Can you hear me through the raptures Of the shining fields? Where the waste of rose and lily,

Breath of Eden yields; Where you walk with troops of spirits Purged from earthly tears—
Can you hear? For one short vision,
I would linger years.

Come, my Love! the snow is shining; You may walk in white, As upon the floor of heaven,

If you come to-night-Not a print of mortal treading-It is chastely meet— You may walk, not fear the soiling Of your geutle feet.

Come ! the dawn will shine upon it, The great face of day-Like a dream-in tears and silence, It will melt away.

Talent is a very common family trait, genius belongs rather to individuals; just as you find one giant or one dwarf in a family, but rarely a whole brood of either,

COMPENSATIONS. - For everything you have missed, you have gained something else; and for everything you gain, you loose something. If riches increase, they are increased that use them. If the gatherer gathers too much, nature takes out of the man what he puts into his chest; swells the estate, but kills the owner. Nature bates monopolies and exceptions. The waves of the sea do not more speedily seek a level from their lottiest tossing, than the varieties of condition tend to equalize themselves. There is always some levelling circumstances that puts down the overbearing, the strong, the rich, the fortunate, substantially on the same ground with all others .-Emerson.
