

of the inverse. The words unitarian and trinitarian were patent or common only among the theological culture, and Christ's kingdom was eternal and never to be delivered up. The triangle containing 10 triangles in one by the threefold count and all limited to one centre and three diameters of the snowflake has never been discovered as the measuring reed of everything for angels and men to be measured by before the discovery of this science of all sciences. To work out things by it mathematically, assured the author that he had discovered the key that unlocked the riddle of the universe. At least he made many assertions that led people to be amazed and exclaim, "Where did he get all his learning?" He must have walked and talked with God like Adam did in Eden. He is a heretic and lunatic. He owned to teaching that Christ was going to destroy the material temple in Jerusalem and raise it up on the third day of eternal time very early in the morning of that third day. The circle of his days went around all material time for the first day and around social time for the second day, while for the third day there was no circle for everlasting spiritual time.

Now catch your dull scholars by the back of their coat collars and shake some new ideas into them. They won't make their own school globe and stretch Christ's vesture of materialism over it. They will not make the three pasteboard clock faces with all the 10 different times and longitude on them. They will not cut the apple cube root and lay it all down in 16 parts. They will not make the three different forms on the spider web frame to illustrate the nothingness of matter with. So you have to repeat to them this axiom. The points of each square triangle and circular bud points to the extinction of everything unless God becomes the third witness in this new creation in the next generation.

Let us take "Billy" Sunday by the nape of the neck and see if we can shake a few mechanical ideas into him. He does not believe in a mechanical hell if rightly reported, but does believe in a mechanical baseball diamond. Now we want to make this diamond and Billy's next tabernacle on the north pole of earth, sun and universe. Billy is a good hard hitter towards hell. Now we have Billy in the centre of the diamond so there can be no flies or misses. The ball is thrown directly north over Billy's head, and continuing going in the same direction, yet goes directly south into the catcher's hands. Billy hits it the next time and knocks it straight into midnight and runs off in the same direction south into midday. He has struck the back track on his own sawdust trail. He is off for Egypt and the people going to hell. He gets a hook in their nose like the old prophets describe the Egyptians being led away captive to Babylon. On the south pole base Billy gets his nose smashed flatter than an Ethiopian in a collision with his own bad. Too dense is it? Let Mrs. Sunday upset Billy and dust the seat of his breeches. The dust flies up towards heaven, while Billy's head dangles hellward. If Billy's mother stripes him with a whip of theology he has 39 lashes around his body. If mother uses Israel's willows and makes ring-streaked and striped welts on his body they will mark him like Jacob did Laban's cattle. They will all be on the hell side of Billy's body. They were struck towards the north. Billy's spinal column or solar plexus is where the sun rises and never sets. It is hard to understand such scientific facts. A reviewer quotes me as saying:
