

THE INVENTOR

Next morning they talked of fly-wheels and about
that driving weight;

For every force to start the machine there was one to kill it straight.

We searched around the campsite, through the dark woods that screened;

The skull was gone, but I thought how like a perpetual motion fiend.