QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

REGISTERING A CLYDESDALE.

Purchased a four-year-old Clyde mare. She is from a registered mare and horse, and was foaled on the way over from England, and the party neglected to get her registered. Can I get her registered, and who shall I apply to?

G. M. D.

Ans.—Correspond with "The Accountant," National Live-stock Records, Ottawa.

SILOS.

1. Are steel silos a success?
2. What kind of silo would you recommend, wood, cement, or steel?

H. D.

Ans.—1. Satisfactory results from steel silos have been reported by some who have used them, but we do not consider them so well proven as cement concrete.

2. Well-constructed stave silos are good, but where one has his buildings permanently arranged, and where gravel is reasonably accessible, we usually recommend cement. There are, however, many conditions under which stave silos are to be commended.

TONGUE LOLLER.

I have a valuable mare, nine years old, that has acquired the habit of carrying her tongue outside her mouth when in harness. We tried a spoon bit for a time with good results, but it has now failed to remedy the evil. The mare is in good condition, apparently in good health and spirits. If you can advise me how to remedy the evil, you will greatly oblige.

E. W. L.

Ans.—Four illustrations of lolling bits appeared in "The Farmer's Advocate" of February 17th, 1910, page 252, one by W. E. Stout, of your county, all said to be effective, and procurable at harness shops. We know of no better method of prevention.

BLOODY MILK.

A three-year-old heifer has been giving bloody milk from one quarter of her udder for two months; cause unknown. She is in perfect health; udder has not been caked; teats have not been sore; milking ten months.

W. J. A.

Ans.—If the cow is giving milk freely, and there is no inflammation in the udder, the bloody milk is probably the result of a rupture of the tissues of the teat or udder, due to a bruise, or possibly to severe pressure of the hands by the milker, and with gentle milking, and with oiling the quarter with goose oil or lard, and giving a teaspoonful of salt-petre in feed twice a day for a week, the trouble may pass away. If she becomes constipated, administer a pint of raw linseed oil.

CEMENT WALLS AND FLOOR IN POULTRY HOUSE.

1. I have a two-story building with pigs down and hens up. There is about seven feet of cement, and eight feet of lumber on top. I want to turn it all into a henhouse. Would I have to take out cement floor, or could I cover it with ground or gravel? Will the cement wall be bad for hens?

2. For the last few years we have set our geese on cement floor with straw over it. Some of them did very well, and some of them very badly. Do you think the cement floor would have anything to do with the eggs being bad? If so, what kind of cover could I put on so that it would be all right?

A. M.

Ans.—1. We do not consider that this would make a very good henhouse, but plenty of light and ventilation would improve it. Lining with boards would also help. The cement floor will be all right if kept deeply covered with earth or litter, or both. If a foot of sand or loam is spread over the floor, and renewed twice a year, and plenty of litter is spread over this again, being renewed whenever it becomes foul or damp, good results should be experienced. We should suppose a goose would do better if set on earth than on cement.
