At the regular meeting of Branch No. 14, C. M. B. A., held August 12th, the following report of the Branch was unanimously adopted—
 Moved by Bro. Skelly, seconded by Bro. Spellan;
 Whereas, this Branch has learned with sincere regret of the affliction with which it has pleased Divine Providence to visit the home of our highly respected Guard, Brother Adolf Weiser, and remove therefrom by the hand of death his esteemed wife,
 Resolved, That we, the members of this Branch, sincerely sympathise with Bro. Weiser and his family in the bereavement with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best.
 Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to Bro. Weiser, and also published in our official organ, the CATHOLIC RECORD.

LETTER FROM CHATHAM.

ENLARGING THE USULINE CONVENT.
 SIR.—The ladies of the above named institution, owing to the constantly increasing number of applications for admission from pupils from various parts of the United States as well as Canada, have been obliged to add a new wing to their convent to enable them to receive the requirements of all seeking a higher education at this popular seat of learning.

The new building, which will be ready for use at the opening of the next session, let September, is thirty-two by eighty-two feet, four stories high, with mansard roof exterior finish as well as in the interior. It comprises recreation halls, music halls, dormitories, private rooms for young ladies who desire them, and a studio for painting. The greatest taste is being exercised in the finishing of these different apartments, and the heating, lighting and ventilating are perfect. An extra room has been added to the construction of this new wing, that is, the health, comfort and happiness of the pupils. The music hall, which occupies the whole of the second floor, is large and very recently finished with stage, and for use as a commencement exercise. The ceilings of this and the dormitories are some thirteen feet high, which give them a most healthy and spacious appearance. The private rooms are also large and airy, and I understand that several of them had been engaged for the purpose of being used by the addition of the other improvements that are being made, will sum up close to $10,000. The play-grounds have also been enlarged and are now very extensive and attractive. To them have been added a driving park where the pupils can take excursions on horseback. This and the other improvements of the great care and forethought exercised by the good nuns for the health and amusement of their pupils.

One would suppose when considering the great expense incurred in the fitting up of these premises, that the cost of an education here would be more than ordinarily expensive, but I see by the advertisement in your paper that it is only an item of $100 per annum for board and tuition. This is marvellous when we consider the many advantages offered here which cannot be obtained elsewhere.
 The readers of the RECORD are, I presume, thoroughly acquainted with the course of studies pursued here, so it would be superfluous to expatiate on them just now. The best proof afforded us of the superiority of the education imparted is the necessity of having to provide more accommodation for the very large number of pupils from all parts of the States, and also from every province in the Dominion, and the liberal patronage bestowed upon it by other denominations as well as Catholics. All this goes to show that the Ursuline convent is, if not the best, one of the best institutions for imparting a practical and refined education to young ladies on the continent of America. With best wishes for the CATHOLIC RECORD,
 I am, yours gratefully,
 A VISITOR.

HOT AIR FURNACES.

We direct attention to the announcement of the E. & C. Gurney Co., of Hamilton, which appears in this issue. This firm has been established in Hamilton for a number of years and their manufactures have not only gained a high reputation in that city, but are well and favorably known all over the Dominion. The Hot Air Furnaces which they have now placed in the market possess all those qualities which render them most desirable for churches, schools, public buildings, stores and private dwellings. Those who contemplate fitting up any one of such places the coming winter could not do better than communicate with the Messrs. Gurney.

MR. HEALY ON LIBERAL CLEAR-ANCE.

Dublin United Ireland.
 On Mr. Parnell's motion for inquiry into the Maamtrasna and other cases, Mr. Healy said:—I think, sir, this House will agree with me that there is a favorable contrast between the tone of the two speeches which have just been delivered—the Marquis of Hartington's and the Chief Secretary's, and I take leave to say, as an Irishman, that the speech of the Irish Secretary, characterized as it was by a desire for an increase, not only in Ireland but throughout the Empire, of the policy of appeasement, contrasted favorably with the speech of the noble marquis (hear, hear). The motives of the two speeches we have heard will also be criticized. And what were these motives? Confessedly the Government strove, as every Government should strive, to get together all the subjects of Her Majesty the Queen. The noble marquis on the 11th of August promised an inquiry (loud Irish cheers). What was the object of that inquiry? The motive and object of that promise—the meaneast motive and object—was simply to ease the progress of supply (Irish cheers), and hear, hear, from the Ministerialists. The Irish members were talking on these questions on the Appropriation Bill, and simply for the purpose of saving two or three hours of Parliament (loud Irish cheers). That promise, whether the noble marquis or by Lord Spencer, has been shamefully broken (Irish cheers). To save two or three hours of Parliament at any time on the 11th of August is to give the promise, and the promise was kept by sending down Mr. George Bolton (Irish cheers), and to-night the noble marquis and noble lords who gave the promise on the occasion stand up here with proud and happy faces (loud Irish cheers). The noble marquis (hear, hear) at the Home Secretary thinks that a personal reflection on him I will withdraw it (loud laughter)—to justify what they have done, and to back Spencer. Sir, it appears to me that these sordid Opposition benches, to which we have been moved (loud Irish cheers), have been arranged for a purpose, month by month from the newspapers that upon this night week a little banquet is to be given to the late Viceroy (Irish laughter), a species, I suppose, of what the French call leche d'annee (renewed laughter), and so we are arranged to-night to give to the members of the Liberal Party. But the Liberal Party to-night is not quite solid, because I miss from the Liberal benches to-night, as the public will miss to-morrow, the statesmanlike and significant figures of the members for Chelsea and Birmingham (Irish and Ministerial cheers). But the Liberal Party to-night is not quite solid, because I miss from the Liberal benches to-night, as the public will miss to-morrow, the statesmanlike and significant figures of the members for Chelsea and Birmingham (Irish and Ministerial cheers). But the Liberal Party to-night is not quite solid, because I miss from the Liberal benches to-night, as the public will miss to-morrow, the statesmanlike and significant figures of the members for Chelsea and Birmingham (Irish and Ministerial cheers). But the Liberal Party to-night is not quite solid, because I miss from the Liberal benches to-night, as the public will miss to-morrow, the statesmanlike and significant figures of the members for Chelsea and Birmingham (Irish and Ministerial cheers).

"Under which king, Boston?
 (Loud cheers and laughter). Are the Irish people to understand that when this even-keeled vessel of the Liberal Party is in full sail and flying before the breeze, gentlemen like the member for Chelsea (Sir Charles Dike) and the member for Birmingham (Mr. Chamberlain), when any party work is to be done, that the noble marquis is to swap the decks (loud Irish and Ministerial cheers and laughter), while they retire to the cabin with the sublime serenity of men enjoying a first-class passage (loud and continued laughter). And if I may continue this nautical metaphor, I may say that the noble marquis, I repeat, has thrown Lord Spencer overboard as a species of Jonah, and another portion wanted the Tory Party to pick him up again out of the somewhat malodorous waters into which he had been flung (Irish cheers). In my opinion the Tory Party have not only extraordinary wisdom (Ironical Opposition cheers) in declining to bring medical succor to that great Liberal statesman to whom gentlemen like the right hon. members for Chelsea and Birmingham, belonging to his own party, declined to assist (hear, hear). The speech of the noble marquis appears to be full of envy at the success of the Tory party in governing Ireland. It seemed to be very much a question of sour grapes. But while we have the Government to-night denounced by the noble Marquis, aided by the late Home Secretary, for aiding and abetting the Parnellite party, I ask which section of the Liberals they were to believe? (Irish cheers). The noble marquis produced with great effect a letter from the Prime Minister (cries of "Late")—the happily late Prime Minister. That Prime Minister had in that House a very distinguished relative, the member for Leeds. Are we to believe, the right hon. member for Midlothian in his denunciations of the Irish policy of the Government, or are we to believe the member for Leeds? I read with great attention the speech delivered by the member for Leeds on Tuesday night. This is what the hon. member for Leeds said:—
 "The Tory Government had now chosen, for good or evil—with the Irish landlords consenting—to rely upon Mr. Parnell for the preservation of law and order and personal security in Ireland, but Irish chiefs and Irishmen must rely on Mr. Parnell for the maintenance of the law." Sir, it is not unnatural that when he has the Tory party coming into office, and having a chance of succeeding in doing what the Liberal party have failed in doing (Tory cheers), that the Liberal party should be jealous and censorious of your efforts (Irish Tory cheers). It is such action on their part, I congratulate the Tory party. Their own account of their action was that they desired to act towards Ireland as a country to be allied with for good; but now when for the first time—at least in my experience—they saw some chance of this being accomplished without mischief to any party in Ireland, and without hurt or harm to the people of any creed, class, or religion, you should not forget that the Tory party has set about the task with the blessing of the late Prime Minister (cheers), his blessing having been borne by the Balaam of the Liberal party to-night (great laughter). While the Prime Minister, or rather the right hon. gentleman the member for Midlothian, said "God speed," we have other gentlemen attempting to reverse the word (laughter). Be that, sir, as it may, I for my part do not intend to add to, if anything which I can abstain from doing can show that I appreciate the difficulties of the Government, which being trusted by the Tory party, Ireland has some chance of effecting real and substantial improvement (loud and prolonged cheers).

INGERSOLL SEPARATE SCHOOL.

At the recent examination for entrance into the High School, we notice on the list of successful candidates the names of Michael Conroy and Joseph Keating, pupils of the Separate School, Ingersoll, taught by the Misses Annie and Mary Shea, of London. This speaks well for the school, as it is admitted by all that the examination was a particularly difficult one.

CATHOLIC PROGRESS IN ESSEX CENTRE.

On Wednesday, August 12th inst., at the thriving village of Essex Centre, the Rev. J. O'Connor, of Malton, said the first Mass that was ever offered up in this village, at the residence of J. O. Peck, Esq., a merchant, and member of the C. M. B. A. About fifty-five of the Catholics of the village assisted, many of whom received Holy Communion. Steps were taken to form a Catechism class. It is estimated that there are nearly double that number of Catholics in the village, and Catholic families frequently moving in; while in a radius of two miles around are a number more. H. W. D. We sincerely sympathize with the members of the family in the irreparable loss they have sustained.

MR. M. WALSH.

The old residents of the city are rapidly passing over to the great majority, and on Thursday night the noble and well-known citizen paid the great debt of nature. This was Mr. Michael Walsh, who has lived in London for forty years, and who for upwards of thirty-three years occupied the position of head brewer in the Carling brewery. Deceased, who was fifty-six years of age at the time of his death, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, his parents being of Irish descent, but he removed to Canada at an early age. He leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter to mourn his loss—the latter being married to Conductor John Gilligan. He died a most edifying death, having received the last sacraments of the church. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral, on Saturday morning, for the repose of his soul, after which the large and respectable funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's cemetery, where his remains were interred. We sincerely sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

Bishop Ireland will start a preparatory seminary on September 8, near Merrim Park, half way between St. Paul and Minneapolis. Boys who give indication of a vocation for the priesthood, as well as others who desire to obtain the foundation for a liberal education to prepare them for the professions, will be received and educated.

As a result of shutting up the drinking places in Ireland on Sunday, there has been in the last five years a decrease of $27,500,000 spent for intoxicating liquors.

Never did our little Island assemble of Prelates and never was there a more royal demonstration of a people. All eyes were turned to the united in doing honor to a devoted life unreservedly donated and eternal welfare of the people. Ere the hour appointed for the celebration, the music which had ushered in the day to brightest sunshine. The early morning which had dawned hopeful to fear, tended on dust and lend a freshness to the scene. The city everywhere bright and gay appearance. The principal by of hunting crossed the chimes of their Lordships the Charlottetown and Chatham, decorated in Prince Edward Island.
