London Cable.—According to St. etersbug advices the formation of a hird army will be shortly commenced. These observations are made from points of vantage immedately outside the range of artillery, which is intermittent in its practice against the Petersbug advices the formation of a third army will be shortly commenced. This force will be commanded by Gen. Ljubovitsky. If a despatch furnished principal eminences.

In many districts the houses are disappearing, owing to the fact 'that the wood of which they were composed has been, or is being, removed for use as fuel. In the graveyards the trees have been felled and used for fuel, the making of fortifications or the building of bridges. St. Petersburg Cable—Everything indicates that both the Japanese and Russian armies south of Mukden are ready for a resumption of hostilities, if indeed fighting has not already begun. Gen. Kouropatkin reports that the Japanese have received reinforcements from the south and Feng-Wang-Cheng. Their concentration seems to have been accomplished, and they are ready to resume the offensive both east General Oku's Headquarters on the Schill River Cable.—The great armies of Field Marshal Oyama and Gen. Kouropatkin still lie facing one another after a week practically devoid of action. The trenches along the entire line average only 500 yards apart. Neither side dares raise a head above the parapet. It would be suicidal to do so. The artillery searches the lines during the day, and at night the Russians use searchlights. The lines are so close that outposts are impossible. and west of the railroad. There is no official estimates of the strength of the Japanese reinforcements, but corthe Japanese reinforcements, but cor-respondents place it at from 40,000 to 60,000. It is believed that the Japan-ese force has been largely augmented both from Port Arthur, where an en-gineering siege has been begun, and Ja-pan, from whence it is understood every available man is being drafted. It seems to be assured that the Japanese will be able to meet Gen Kouronstiin will be able to meet Gen. Kouropatkin will be able to meet Gen. Kouropatkin on an almost, if not quite, an equal numerical footing. The mere fact that they are again threatening a double flanking movement indicates that Field Marshal Oyama's confidence in the sufficiency of the fore at his disposal. It is believed here that the second battle on the Sha River will prove to be as much bigger and more serious than the first, as the first was more serious than first, as the first was more serious than the battle of Liao-Yang. Geo. Kouropatkin is confronted by an exceedingly difficult problem. He is pitted against a Japanese force stronger, even despite its recent losses, than that first opposing his southern advance. If Kouropatkin now succeeds in checking even, or in breaking the Japanese formation, it will open large possibilities for the brief remainder of the present year's campaign. On the other hand a Russian reverse now would render the position exceedingly critical.

If Kouropatkin now succeeds in checking even, or in breaking the Japanese formation, it will open large possibilities for the brief remainder of the present year's campaign. On the other hand a Russian reverse now would render the position exceedingly-critical.

Despatches indicate the resumption of fighting on both extremeties of the Russian front. The night of Oct. 30 the Japanese attacked the Russian entrenchments east of Sinchinpu, but were repulsed, though the bombardment continued throughout the night. The Japanese advance has also begun against the Russian position at Tunganon, a mile and a half north of Bentsiaputze, where they encountered a heavy Russian fire.

Thus it appears that the Japanese are becoming aggressive along the whole front from Bentsiaputze on the extreme Only the Russians Failed to Mention east of Sinchinpu, which is west of the Sha River, where that stream bends probably constitutes the extreme Russian west, making the battle from about the same as when Gen. At the present moment the trenches on both sides are crowded with troops, on both sides are crowded with troops, and at many places the Japanese and Russians are within hailing distance. At the isolated hill of Manalon, the plain where the Russians ten days ago captured fourteen guns and bayoneted 800 Japanese, the rival forces are only 600 paces apart.

The Russians were commanded from three directions, and withstood a loss of 60 per cent. from artillery fire on the afternoon of the 27th before they were ferced out by the Japanese infantry at night. The Japanese abandoned the position immediately after it was taken. This event does not equal in importance the capture of Manalon Hill. The Japanese, who are posted on a similar hill to the south, appear now to have most determined designs to retrieve the position they abandoned.

In the courtyard of this building may be seen the uncompleted equestrian statue of Napoleon, a monument never finished owing to the opposition of the extreme political parties. The building itself contains a thousand documents of incalculable value. The fire was discovered at a little past midight by the proprietor of an adjacent cafe.

When the police and firemen arrived they discovered that as in the attempt of the day before the large door of the palace had been soaked with turpentine, a small pile of turpentine-saturated sawdust placed against it and the whole ignited.
