GOOD SUGGESTION

"There is a matter which should be drawn to the attention of the Parks and Cemetery committee," said a citizen this morning, "and that is the disgraceful condition of Victoria Park. This would be one of the prettiest spots in town if it were only attended to properly, but the grass is allowed to grow up until it has to be cut with a reaper, the course is not attended to and people are allowed to loaf around through the park all day and then sleep there all night.
"The authorities are anxious to prosecute small boys who swim in the river but they allow everything to go on in Victoria Park. There are two men attending to Tecumseh Park now and surely one of them could be spared to look after Victoria Park for a short time at least.
"The Council should look after this matter at once, as it is not only a disgrace to the city, but also the cause of much annoyance to the residents of that vicinity."

WAR SEEMS INEVITABLE

Unless Speedy Reparation is Made for the Insult to the British Flag.

Staid English Papers Openly Contemplate War—The Situation Exceedingly Grave.

London, Thursday, July 21.—"Lord Lansdowne," says the Daily Telegraph, "voicing the views of the Government, has faced the situation created by the abuse of the right to search in the only manner worthy of a British minister compelled to defend the interests of British commerce and the honor of the flag, and acting with unhesitating firmness and promptitude, which recall the strongest days of the national policy, he has justified the trust of the country."

"While not one rash word should be said which could have the effect of increasing the tension of an anxious and dangerous interval, it would be futile to disguise the character or to minimize the situation which has arisen. We hope and believe that a solution of a difficulty may still be found in the withdrawal of Russia from its false position. It is obvious if the volunteers passed the Dardanelles as merchant vessels they cannot be allowed to scour the Red Sea as warships. The doors of the Black Sea must either be open or shut. If open to warships, they must be so to all warships. If the Russian fleet is to be permitted to emerge in violation of treaty provisions, the British flag must be allowed to enter upon these terms."

"It is no secret that we have not been willing to remove the existing veto of the Dardanelles and enable those straits to be traversed by the navies of all nations."

The Telegraph goes on to say that the stores of the Malacca were plainly marked with the broad arrow, showing that they belonged to the British Government, and were destined only for a British depot.

"It would be impossible to conceive a more remarkable accumulation of illegality and error than has attended the present case," the paper says. "If this country were capable, under any circumstances, of tamely enduring so grave an injury to the most vital of its interests and so great an insult to its honor, we should have forfeited our claim to be a great nation. In any circumstances we think it may be assumed that the Malacca will never be navigated by a British crew to any Russian port. She is watched, if not actually stopped, by British warships, and she will in any case be restored to her owner long before she can be taken through the Dardanelles or navigated to Libau."

"The emergency in some respects, is the most critical that has marked our relations with Russia in the last 20 years, and in face of the inflamed state of public opinion in St. Petersburg, it would be unwise to blind ourselves to the existence of possibilities that would otherwise be unthinkable. This country has adopted, with decision and composure, an attitude from which there can be no retreat or flinching. We seek a simple redress for a violent and unprovoked injury, and where the peace of the West depends upon the will of the Czar, we cannot believe that civilization will look to him during the next 48 hours in vain."

PROTESTS ENTERED.

St. Petersburg, July 20, 6.35 p.m.—Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador to Russia, this afternoon, in behalf of his Government, presented a strong protest to Russia against the seizure in the Red Sea and detention of the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Malacca, which was carrying three hundred tons of British Government stores for the naval establishment at Hong Kong, each case of which was marked with the broad arrow, which is the Government stamp.

The Ambassador also presented a general protest against the action of the Russian volunteer fleet steamer in the Red Sea.
The protest was in the form of a verbal note, made in conformity with telegraphic instructions from the British Government. It does not raise the question of the passage of the Dardanelles by vessels of the volunteer fleet, it being understood that Great Britain is reluctant to reopen the question of the Dardanelles, and that she will not do so except as a last resort. Russia has reason to believe, and contends that the Malacca, in addition to British Government stores, had on board munitions intended for Japan.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IMMINENT.

Russia seems prepared for any representations Great Britain may make on the subject of the stopping ships in the Red Sea. It is understood that before sending the cruiser there the Russian authorities became satisfied through an elaborate system of espionage that an immense amount of contraband was going from England through the Red Sea to Japan, and they decided to stop the traffic. It is understood that if this traffic is now diverted to the Cape route the Russian Admiralty is prepared to send ships to the Cape of Good Hope. If Great Britain objects to the passage of the Dardanelles by more vessels of the volunteer fleet, the ships intended for cruising off the Cape may be sent from the Baltic. In this connection very important developments are believed to be imminent.

GERMANY MAKES COMPLAINT.

Germany has called attention to the seizure of the mails on board the Prinz Heinrich in the Red Sea, July 15, by the Smolensk, and has requested explanations. These have not yet been given, the report of the commander of the Smolensk not having arrived. The restoration of the mails yesterday was made without instructions from St. Petersburg. Russia having declared communications intended for the Japanese to be contraband of war maintains the right to examine such mail, but does not contend for the right to take general mail addressed to Japan, and unless peculiar circumstances justified the seizure of the mails on the Prinz Heinrich the act will be disavowed. The first impression in diplomatic circles here that the action of the Russian volunteer fleet vessels in stopping neutral ships in the Red Sea to search for contraband of war would not give rise to international complications is being superseded by the impression that instigated by Great Britain it will at least lead to an interchange of views between the powers generally to the treaty of Paris regarding the status of the remaining ships of the volunteer fleet now in the Black Sea. Thus the old question of the Dardanelles may again become the subject of important diplomatic communications. As a forcible reminder of what stopping British ships involves, it is likely that Great Britain's preliminary action may be the presentation of claim for damages for the detention of all ships stopped. In addition to claims for the ships stopped by the Smolensk and St. Petersburg, it is not impossible that claims may also be presented for ships detained at Port Arthur at the opening of the war, and for those in the Red Sea by Admiral Wierum's squadron before the latter returned to the Baltic. It is considered possible that Japan may have already appealed to her ally, as one of the terms of the treaty of Paris, on the ground that to allow more Russian ships to go out of the Dardanelles for conversion into war-ships without a protest would constitute a violation of the treaty of Paris.

The attempts to create a sensation out of the passage of the Dardanelles by the Russian guardship Chernomoretz are ridiculous. This war-ship being the regular Athens guardship, has been passing in and out of the Black Sea for twenty years.

THE CZAR IS MUCH ANNOYED

Possibility of Complications With Britain—Displeases Russian Ruler.

An Amicable Adjustment of Difficulty Over the Red Sea Seizures Considered Probable.

St. Petersburg, July 21, 1.42 a.m.—The Associated Press has just been informed that Emperor Nicholas, in an interview with Count Lamsdorff, the Foreign Minister, expressed his displeasure at the turn events had taken, and at the possibility of complications with Great Britain arising out of the detention of British ships by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red Sea.

This pacific attitude, if the report be correct, will doubtless lead to an immediate and amicable adjustment of the difficulties.

NEW FISHING METHOD

Chas. Baxter and James Robinson went to the lighthouse to fish. Their friends say that the pair were too kind hearted to catch the fish with a hook and tried the plan of putting salt on their tails. Unfortunately, the water melted the salt and they only got one small fish. Their friends, who went over last night to share in the day's sport, had to go away disappointed. There wasn't enough fish to go around.

A NATIONAL MOVEMENT

Proposed Testimonial to Lord Dundonald Launched at Toronto.

A Committee Appointed to Carry Out the Idea—A Letter of Thanks From His Lordship.

Toronto, Ont., July 20.—A movement looking towards the presentation of a national testimonial to Lord Dundonald was launched to-day, when a committee of Toronto citizens was named by the Dundonald reception committee to carry out the wishes of the citizens' meeting and co-operate with committees throughout Canada.

At the meeting there was some discussion in regard to the misrepresentations, or apparent misrepresentations, which have been made in the English press and in the Imperial House of Commons as to the supposed political character of Friday night's demonstration. It was unanimously decided to take no action whatever in relation to these.

The following telegram has been received from Lord Dundonald by J. F. Ellis, chairman of the reception committee: "Have just written you, thanking you and members of committee for all your kindness to me in Toronto on Friday, but my letter has missed the train. Pray explain to committee and beg them to accept this assurance of my deep and heartfelt thanks."

A small sub-committee has been appointed to draft a reply to the letter when it is received.
