TICKETS TO SELL

There's a road all completed in perfect condition, running straight, with no turn from the earth to perdition; there are trains starting out every hour in the day. There is room for all souls that are going that way; and the depot is scattered broadcast o'er the land. There are men, everywhere, who wait your command. With tickets to sell: tickets to sell! Tickets to ticket you through to hell.

There's a first-class ticket, a glass of old wine; and Bacchus smiles up from the "nectar divine." Drink it, young man! drink it, it's a No. 1 pass!

It will carry you through to perdition, first-class. You will enter the palace car—ah! but the end. Unto you and the street set will be the same, friend; tickets! first, second, and third class to sell! Tickets to ticket you through to hell.

Third and second—ale, whisky, rum, brandy and beer. Cheap as dirt—come and buy! they are all for sale here. Are you troubled with baggage? No matter you know, it will lighten the further you go. Is the road safe? Yes, friend, buy a ticket. Cannot fail of the station you're ticketed to. Tickets to sell! tickets to sell! They'll see you safe through to perdition and hell.

Swift, swift from the highlands of peace, truth and light, down down through the marshes of midday and night, through the tunnels of sorrow, of terror and pain, through the lowlands of shame, and of poverty plain; through crime, grief and sin, to the valley of death, doth the engine speed down with its hot scorching breath—All aboard! Wait—show me your ticket! "This will!" It will carry you through to destruction and hell.

ENJOY AS YOU GO.

Some people mean to have a good time when their hard work is done—say, at fifty. Others plan to enjoy themselves when their children are grown up. Others mean to take their pleasure when they get rich, or when their business is built upon a sure foundation, or the farm is paid for, or the grind of some particular sorrow is overpast.

These individuals might as well give up ever having a good time. The season of delight which is so long waited and hoped for, too rarely comes. Disease, poverty, death claims each his victims. The lives of those whom we love, or our own goes out, and what is life?

Then take your pleasure to-day, while there is yet time. Things may not be in the best shape for that visit you have been so long planning to your only sister. It might be better if you could wait till you had a more stylish suit of clothes, or till the boy was at home from college to look after the place; but she is ready now. You are both growing old—you had better go.

John drives around with the horse, "Jump in mother," he says. "It's a lovely day. You need the fresh air." "Don't say, 'I can't go, I was intending to make dough-nuts,' or 'My crimping pins are not out,' or 'My dress isn't arranged. Put on a warm cloak, tie a veil around your hat, take your ride. If you don't take such things when you can get them, they are apt to shy when you want them again."

Don't say, "I shall be glad when that child is grown up! What quantities of trouble he makes!" No; enjoy his cunning ways, revel in his affectionate hugs and kisses; they will not be so plenty by-and-by. Enjoy his childhood. It will look sweet to you when it is gone forever.

Enjoy the little of every day. The great favors of fortune come to but few, and those who have them tell us that the quiet, homely joys, which are within the reach of us all, are infinitely better. Then let us not cast them away, but treasure every sunbeam, and get all the light and warmth from it the blessings hold.

THE PRESS AND ITS CRITICS.

Those horrid newspapers! cried a lady who, herself incapable of editing acceptably the children's department of a so-called rate county weekly, never, the less kindly volunteered advice to the managers of a metropolitan journal. She wanted elegance of diction, high moral teaching, perfect integrity, and choice miscellany, furnished at the cost to her, of 5 cents. She knew that the present standard of newspaper ethics was low, and she wrote a letter packed full of instructive ideology and faultless language to tell editors how much better they might be.

The press is neither a white-winged angel nor a baleful demon.

Its representatives are working for a living, and working very hard at that. There are papers which deliberately bid for the lowest patronage, no doubt, but the majority would rather print sermons than scandals, if the former paid. The hard, cold fact realized by editors is that failure is the one unpardonable crime in the business world. The good are not always good pay. When a gambler ordered a ton of coal from me, said a worthy coal dealer in a mining camp, "I knew he'd pay cash, but if it was a minister, why, I would have to wait for my money." And a business must be made to pay; it can't be run on a sentiment. The columns of a local press, are rarely, if ever, closed to the appeals from the injured or oppressed. Some of the finest literary work is being done for newspapers to-day, revealing in finish the most pretentious magazine articles. Others, of course, are dull, flashy or worthless, reflecting the community in which they are printed, pretty faithfully. As individuals, the newspaper men are generous, brilliant and courageous giving life and hope, often, to the championing of a section which grudgingly meets their expenses; working night and day with want recognition, but with unconquerable buoyancy of spirit, in the face of many dangers and disappointments.—St. Louis Magazine.

IT DIDN'T SNOW.

There are some men in Detroit who are too peppery for anything. The other day, when the humble-minded thermometer was marking off eighty-eight degrees in the shade a very mild-mannered man entered a business place on Michigan avenue and confidently inquired of the proprietor.

"Have you paid much attention to the weather to-day?" "I should remark that I had," was the reply. "I've been sweating like a steer in a corn field ever since breakfast."

"Exactly. I don't doubt your word in the least. You don't see any indications of a freeze up, followed by snow?" "Do you take me for a fool?" roared the proprietor as his face took on a beautiful crushed strawberry tint.

"No, sir; no sir! I simply asked you the question."

"And I simply tell you to go to Hell, sir!"

"Exactly—I'm going. I'm a stranger in this city, and I hoped I might meet with civil people during my temporary stay here. It's all right, sir—all right. I asked you if it was likely to freeze and snow before night, and you rebuke me with Billingsgate. I know when I'm rebuked, and I never give the rebuker a chance to beg my pardon. Good day, sir!"—Detroit Free Press.

SLURSON WOMEN.

Of all the evils prevalent among men, we know of none more blighting in its moral effects than to speak slightly of the virtue of women. Nor is there anything in which young men are so thoroughly mistaken, as the low estimate they form of the integrity of women—not of their own mothers and sisters, but of others, who, they forget, are somebody else's mothers and sisters. As a rule, no person who surrenders to this debasing habit is to be trusted with any enterprise requiring integrity of character.

Plain words should be spoken on this point for the evil is a general one, and deep rooted. If young men are sometimes thrown into the society of thoughtless or lewd women, they have no more right to measure all other women by what they see of these, than they would have to estimate the character of honest and respectable citizens by the developments of crime in our police courts. Let our young men remember that their chief happiness of life depends upon their trust in women. No worldly wisdom, no misanthropic philosophy, no generalization, can cover or weaken this fundamental truth. It stands like the record of God himself—for it is nothing less than this—and should put an everlasting seal upon lips that are wont to speak slightly of women.—Ez.

THE NEWSPAPER.

"Our theory of the newspaper," says Charles Dudley Warner, the editor of the Hartford Courant, "is that it is very much what the public want it and make it, and we believe that, as a rule, the tone of a newspaper is higher than that of a majority of its readers. The editor feels inevitable the responsibility of his position, and, no doubt, would often like to make, a better newspaper than he does make. But editors (and especially publishers) are human, and many of them have a notion that they must live somehow, and that a little lowering of tone is profitable."

The tide of prohibition is rising every day. Men of all shades of opinion are thinking, and when people think on the liquor traffic, they quickly discover its real character. We have had thoughtful men say to us within a few weeks, "It is astonishing that we have endured this evil so long." When the people of this continent become fully aroused on the liquor question, they will overthrow it with a vengeance that will thrill its advocates with terror.

Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhoea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. An immense river of red hot lava is now flowing down from the new crater on the side of Mount Etna. This immense mass of molten matter is from five to six miles in length, three to four in breadth, and thirty to forty feet in height, and moves at the rate of a mile per hour.

After many ups and many downs, the Western Union Telegraph Co. is obliged to declare a suspension of dividends. Had the affairs of the Company been judiciously managed, the fluctuation in the stock would have been avoided, and hundreds of credulous stockholders saved from ruin.

Mrs. Uriah Johnson, River Herbert, writes:—"Minard's Liniment cured me of a very sore nose, and also inflammation in the eyes; it is the cure all and I believe it is the best inflammation allay and pain killer in the world. It sells every day."

The grandest and strongest natures are ever the calmest. A fiery restlessness is the symbol of frailties not yet outgrown. The repose of power is its richest phase and its clearest testimony.

I sprained my leg so badly that I had to be driven home in a carriage. I immediately applied Minard's Liniment freely and in 48 hours could use my leg again as well as ever.—JOSHUA WYSAVANT, Bridgewater, N. S.

Speaking of the sympathy that exists between husband and wife, is it not a little paradoxical that when the husband is habitually drunk it should make the wife habitually sober?

Cramps and pains in the stomach or bowels, or in any part of the body, no matter how severe or what the cause, can be relieved by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment used internally and externally.

A Mexican died the other day who was followed to the grave by eighty-seven sons and daughters, and had buried thirteen. He was a father to the grand total of 100 children.

EAGER'S PHOSPHORINE is a PERFECT Emulsion. It will mix with water, milk, or in fact anything, and with water the mixture resembles, both in appearance and taste, the well known arctic milk.

A young man has been detected in Boston who is a professional bicycle thief. He steals bicycles in the small towns, ships them by express to Boston and sells them there.

More than twenty years ago we had chills and fever, and the recollection of it makes us shiver even now. But this disease no longer terrifies us Parson's Purgative Pills are a sure preventive.

There are ample facilities for getting out of Chicago, as there are no less than 250 trains leaving the City daily.

Speaking of wages, it is when the harvest comes that the farmers go for a general cut down.—Boston Courier.
