

Intent Was to Murder All On Board of Lusitania

Finding of Court of Inquiry in London Announced—Disaster
Caused by German Submarine—Captain and Steamer
Owners Blameless

London, July 17.—"Torpedoes fired by a submarine of German nationality," caused the loss of the steamship Lusitania and its passengers, according to the findings of a court of inquiry appointed to investigate the disaster.

The court held that no blame attached either to Captain Turner, commander of the vessel, or the Cunard line, the owners.

"After having carefully inquired into the circumstances of the disaster," says the formal report, "the court finds the loss of said ship and lives was due to damage caused the ship by torpedoes fired by a submarine of German nationality."

"In the opinion of the court, the act was done not merely with the intention of sinking the ship, but also with the intention of destroying the lives of the people aboard."

A DOLLAR TALKS

Warns its Owner Against Sending It
Away—Pleads to be Kept at Home

"I am a Dollar! A little ageworn, perhaps, but still in circulation. I am proud of myself for being in circulation. I am no tomato-can dollar—not I. This town is only my adopted-home, but I like it and hope to remain permanently. When I came out of the mint I was adopted into a town like this in another province. But, after a time, I was sent off to a big city, many miles away. I turned up in a mail-order house. For several years I stayed in that city. Millions were bought with me. I didn't like that, for I believe in the plain people. Finally a travelling man brought me to this town and left me here. I was so glad to get back to a smaller town that I was determined to make a desperate effort to stay."

"One day a citizen of this town was about to send me back to that big city. I caught him looking over a mail-order catalogue. Suddenly I found my voice and said to him: 'Look here, if you'll let me stay in this town I'll circulate around and do you a lot of good. You buy a big beefsteak with me, and the butcher will buy groceries, and the grocer will buy hardware, and the hardware man will pay his doctor bill with me, and the doctor will spend me with a farmer for oats to feed his horse with, and the farmer will buy some fresh meat from the butcher, who will come around to the dentist to get his tooth mended. In the long run, as you see, I'll be more useful to you here at home than if you send me away forever!'"

"The man said it was a mighty stiff argument. He hadn't looked at it in that light before, so he went and bought the beefsteak, and I began to circulate around home again."

The above article from "Country Life in Canada," for June, illustrates in a striking manner the argument for home town buying. The argument applies quite as strongly in the matter of "Made-in-Canada" purchasing. The best results for all concerned are secured by spending the dollar in one's own community. First, giving the preference, where possible, to articles made in the community, second, to "Made-in-Canada" articles, and third, where "Made-in-Canada" articles cannot be secured, preference should be

SUMMER COMPLAINTS KILL LITTLE ONES

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets, or in a few hours he may be beyond cure. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly cure these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE ARGUMENT IN A NUTSHELL

"Made-in-Canada" Idea in Condensed Form—A Simple but Convincing Statement

A writer in the University Magazine for April attacks the "Made-in-Canada" movement in somewhat vigorous fashion. After commenting on the selfishness of those who are responsible for it he delves into some economic arguments, maintaining that if a country does not buy it cannot sell, and that goods are exchanged for goods. There is a certain measure of truth in the latter statement, but the "Made-in-Canada" argument does not deny this. It is a practical policy, dictated by motives of enlightened self-interest, based on the theory that what is good for Canada and Canadians must, in the long run, be good for the British Empire, of which we form a part. The "Made-in-Canada" argument is simply this:

Canada is a young country, which, although it has one of the most moderate protective tariffs in the world, has built up a great national industrial system. For a couple of years the output of this plant has decreased because the demand for manufactured goods has fallen off, with the result that many workers are out of employment and a great quantity of unsold goods is stored in warehouses. Yet we are buying hundreds of millions of dollars worth of manufactured goods abroad. Those who advocate the "Made-in-Canada" policy say to Canadian buyers: 'Before you purchase an imported article see if you can find a similar Canadian article which would suit you. You will probably find it and you will find probably, too, that the quality and price compare favorably with the quality and price of the imported article. If you should discover in some cases that the Canadian article is not quite so good or quite so cheap as the imported article, ask yourself if your patronage will help in time to bring about a state of affairs where the Canadian article would be equal or superior to the imported article. Possibly, in view of the present extraordinary situation, you might concede a little in favor of the Canadian article, but we do not ask you to make any considerable sacrifice to do so. If thousands of Canadian buyers follow this policy, Canadian goods can be produced in such great quantities that their quality can be improved and their price lowered. Canadian raw material will be utilized, employment will be furnished at home, and our foreign obligations will be reduced."

Amsterdam, July 16.—The German newspaper Maerkische Volksstimme has been suppressed for publishing the French account of the fighting at Notre Dame de Lorette, in which the Germans were defeated.

London, July 17.—A special to the London Daily Telegraph from Milan says: "The chief action along the larger part of the front now devolves on the artillery. Day and night the batteries are shelling the Austrian forts either in southern Trentino, in Cadore, or on the upper Isonzo, where many high walls and heavy steel cupolas have already been blown to pieces."

THE COMRADE IN WHITE

(By Michael Whelan.
From the far-flung front of the Western Line, Showing the love of the Lord divine For the wretched victims of brutal war, Comes this strange, sweet tale of that scene afar, To a simple soldier by Him revealed.
The White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

With hands upraised and an inward groan He cried, "Alas! if the world had known, But now it is hidden far from its eyes, And the Son of Man in His children dies, The hearts of men are to ice congealed."
Cried the White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

Alone and wounded the soldier lay When the Vision came at the close of day, All hope for help from his comrades vain, He lay and writhed in his bitter pain. To the Wounded Heart his sadness appealed, To the White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

The wounded man in His arms He took And bore him away to a babbling brook, Where his wounds He washed and dressed and bound, As he lay on the death-strewn battleground. "Now rest you here, from the foe concealed," Said the White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

The soldier's soul was with joy replete Till he saw the Wounds in His Hands and Feet, And he cried "Dear Friend, you are wounded too! Is there aught on earth I can do for you?" "Those wounds are old, they are yet unhealed," Said the White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

"Who is this person?" the critics say, Who can it be but the Lord on high? Who for all men on Mount Calvary died And again by this war is crucified, Who in the heavens all power wields, The White Robed Friend of the Battlefield.

Dear Lord, come down from Your home on high Hear Thy poor war-worn children's cry, Hear our poor prayer, great Prince of Peace And bid this cruel warfare cease, In this awful strife be our sword and shield, Thou White Robed Christ of the Battlefield.

EMPLOYMENT AND WAGES

"Made-in-Canada" Provides Work For Working People

The "Made-in-Canada" movement today means more than business or profit for the Canadian manufacturer. It means employment for Canadian workpeople, who will spend their wages over the counters of Canadian stores to the advantage of Canadian merchants and Canadian business generally. It means traffic, both freight and passenger, for our railways, which again contributes to increased activity in all fields of Canadian commercial enterprise. It means a home market with good prices for what the farmer has to sell to the Canadian workman and his family. Ask the farmers around Winnipeg or Toronto, or Montreal, or Brantford what they think about this splendid market right at their doors.

Dr. Samuel Johnson defined patriotism as "the last refuge of a scoundrel." The man who gets his income from this country in a time of war and spends a good share of it in another is the last kind of scoundrel that could be considered a patriot.

How the Injured Are Cared For

How the Nurses and Doctors
Are Caring for Our Wounded Soldiers

The following letter from D. J. Morrison, now serving in France, to Mrs. Nathaniel Jordan, will be of interest to our readers:

France, June 26, 1915.

Dear Cousin Annie,

You asked me some time ago for a letter you could give to the press. I will try this time and oblige you. Our work here varies every day, just as the need arises. The wounded arrive at any hour or all hours, and our work at the time must give way to the care of our brave warriors.

As they are transferred from train to the hospital, or the ambulance department, and then to the different wards, we must see to the bathing of those who are able to walk, and those who are not are bathed or washed in bed and clean clothes are put on, and a cup of cocoa is given to each one, or something to refresh them.

Then the sisters take charge and here I must say that part of it is performed with kindness and skill. To see them bandaging head, arms, hands, and mending up the broken bones of this one and lighting the cigarette of another, speaking words of comfort and cheer to a third, moving noiselessly from one bed to another night and day, and with every action there accompanies a tender solicitude for the sufferer.

I say all honour to the British doctors, but the Canadian officers leave their regimental dignities at the door of the ward to the pleasure, delight and companionship of Tommy. The sister and doctor go from bed to bed arranging, setting, ordering this one and the other to be sent to the operating theatre, where a leg or arm must be amputated at once to save life. The sufferer is carefully lifted or a stretcher by two orderlies, and carried to a room where the doctor awaits their coming, and sets to work with an aptitude that shows that such operations are of every day occurrence in such hospitals.

To see the wounded coming in from the trenches and passing through the several departments, and see them lying in bed without a murmur or complaint, sets the heart aglow with admiration for our brave men. To see all sorts of cases and the courage and endurance of all pain displayed by the stricken is truly heroic.

On arrival of the mail the other day, one of the orderlies carried a letter from P. O. to a very sick patient. As he was entering the ward the sister raised her hand for silence, the orderly understood, and the letter sent from some far away loved one in some distant village arrived when the hero was giving up his last breath, that liberty might live, and perhaps recalling memories of a home in some glen or far away hillside that he will never see again. Such is some of the work that goes on day after day, wounded arrive, are healed and depart, and the vacant beds are filled again and again with new sufferers, admiration and sadness mingle together, and doctors, sisters, orderlies and all, deserve praise for their unselfish manner in which they are doing their share in the great struggle.

D. J. MORRISON.

That main source of our strength, the farm, was never more promising. Every day improves the prospects for a record crop.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HEALING, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for women's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

London, July 17.—It is announced that the Swedish steamer Texas, from Galveston and Newport News for Christiania and Gothenburg, which arrived at Kirkwall July 10, has discharged certain items of her cotton cargo for the prize court.

Amsterdam, July 17.—During the shelling of Ypres it was impossible to have all the treasures and valuable objects of art removed from the churches, convents and public buildings. However, some days ago Col. Wombley, with Adjutant Dainton, succeeded in digging out of the ruins a quantity of valuables. Up to the present more than 15 wagon loads of treasures of all kinds have been conveyed to France.

THE KAISER NOW REALIZES PERIL

The German Emperor is Reported as Saying that He Staked all on Success

London, July 15.—The Evening Star's Petrograd correspondent today cabled that the German Kaiser, in addressing Landsturm regiments leaving Frankfurt for the Russian battlefield, declared: "We have staked our all. If the enemy is victorious, Germany will no longer exist. Perhaps the war is a mistake on our part, but the present is not the moment to say it. We must have our country."

"The Kaiser," the correspondent says, "appeared agitated, nervous and gray."

Presumably Frankfurt-on-the-Main was meant. The Star's correspondent did not indicate how the Kaiser's words reached him in Petrograd.

Germany is perfectly ready to continue that Lusitania joint debate with the United States if it takes all summer.

Production and retrenchment are the urgent needs of today. Our resources must be saved for the strain of war.

Far too much information is appearing in Canadian papers regarding shipping on the St. Lawrence route. It is folly to court disaster.

The war poisoners have adopted a more deadly gas. They will eventually cure the world of its deluded admiration for Germany and all its works.
