The funeral takes place to St. Johns cemetery tomorrow, at 1 p.m. Rev. Canon Richardson will officiate. THE BLACK KNIGHT.

The Auditorium was crowded yesterday afternoon to her the Rev. J. H. Hector, the Black Knight. It is four years since this well-known evangelist last visited London, and Father Time has dealt kindly with him during that period. He has still a pleasant smile, a hearty handshake and cheery word for all, while his deep, resonant voice has lost none of its sweetness.

Rev. Mr. Hector's address was a simple but eloquent gospel message to men, based on Isaiah lv., 7, admonishing sinners to forsake their evil ways, accept Christ as their savior and heaven as their home. He said he was thankful to God for having brought him safely through so many perils and dangers of the sea, so that he was once more in London, where he had so many warm friends. What was wanted in the Christian religion today was sincerity and honesty. People had also to learn that they had to conform to God's ways and not their own ideas if they were to be saved. What a blessing it would be, he said, concluding, if every sinner could be taught to realize that if he would "return unto the Lord, he will have mercy upon him."

The address was interspersed with song and story and was a very interesting one. Secretary Sayer presided. While the offering was being taken up, Mr. Newton Large sang a solo very Liberal Workers Highly Pleased With the Result.

The figures for the registration which closed on Saturday night show that 2,-031 names were added during the week. The Liberal committees are more than pleased with the result, being satisfied that they have by far the big end of the names added. The result has in fact, far exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine of the Liberal workers. OPEN SWITCH NEAR GLENCOE

Engine and Baggage Car Went to the Ditch-Firemen Crittenden, of Wingsor, Was Injured.

An open switch near Glencoe was the cause of a railroad wreck Saturday evening, which might have resulted seriously had the train been going at its usual rate of speed. Wabash train No. 5, consisting of four coaches, a baggage car, and drawn by engine No. 1,313, manned by a Grand Trunk crew, was running at a fifteen-mile gait at about 9 o'clock, when the open switch was met, and before the engineer had time to do anything the engine and baggage cars were piled in a promiscuous heap in the ditch, with the first coach dangerously near the toppling point. Fortunately for the train crew the ditch was not a very deep one, or there might have been fatalities. Fireman Ernest 'Crittenden, of Windsor, received several painful injuries, but it was not believed that they would result fatally. As soon as help could be gained another engine was fastened on to the coaches, and after a delay of 40 minutes the train proceeded on its way. Fireman Crittenden was put aboard and taken to Windsor, where he was conveyed to his home. The doctor who attended him stated that he might be injured internally, and if so his chances of recovery would be greatly lessened.

The train was in charge of Conductor Pitcher, who, when seen by a reporter, refused to say anything further than that the number of the engine was 1.313. The engine and baggage car are not damaged to any great extent.

We always keep it in the house to protect our children from Croup and Whooping Cough. It cured me of a chronic bronchial trouble that no other remedy would relieve." Sabbath School Anniversary,

Yesterday was the Sabbath school anniversary of the Colborne Street

Methodist Church, and the services were of an interesting nature. Rev. G. Cobbledick, M.A., B.D., of Bothwell, occupied the pulpit. His evening discourse was an eloquent and appropriate one, having as its text Daniel i., 8-"Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat nor with the wine he drank." The book of The book of Daniel, said Rev. Mr. Cobbledick, affords material for a number of excellent pictures. One might have a statesman at prayer; another a prophet condemning his king to eat grass as an ox; third, a seer with vision to discern amid earthly kings a coming King and Prince of Peace. But if I were an artist I would prefer to paint a picture of a boy of Jewish descent, dark eye and clean cut countenance, declining his first proffered meal of rich wines and costly viands, and I would call that picture "A Holy Purpose." I prefer this picture because it explains all the others. It represented the clash of two forces—the boy's opposing pose and the king's purpose. The lat-ter was aided by every advantage of position and environment, while former was saved by his cultured conscience, resulting from his early years of religious training. Though only 16 years of age, he had been for eleven years the subject of instruction in the Jewish religion and schooled in faith pertained to idol worship. purpose is the religion in chief of life's forces, and the lapsed masses are the product of purposelessness. Many lives are gambled away through irresolution. Lives of such holy purpose will always reproduce themselves in streams of ever widening helpfulness. The great work of the Sabbath school, said the reverend gentleman in conclusion, is the forming of characters that will stand the strain of after

Large Turnout of the C. O. F. to Hear Rav. Thos. Wilson Preach the Annual Sermon to the Order.

The annual church parade of the Canadian Order of Foresters, of this city, was held yesterday afternoon to King Street Presbyterian Church, where the pastor, Rev. Thos. Wilson, preached an instructive and absorbing sermon. The turnout was a splendid one, every court in the city being well represented in the procession, which was headed by the Seventh Regiment Band. The route of the procession was from Sherwood, along Dundas street to the church.

During the course of his remarks, Rev. Mr. Wilson argued that the Christian duty of every man was to provide for those of his household, and quoted the words of the Apostle Paul, as found in I. Timothy, v, 8. He spoke in terms of the highest praise of the Canadian Order of Foresters. pointed out that they were a purely Canadian society, and gave reasons why Canadians should feel proud of their country and themselves. order, in point of age, had attained to manhood, having been established 21 years ago. The time was ample in which to demonstrate the stability of the order; of its plans and promises. He urged the members not to place the order before the church of God, and not to forget the interests of the soul, for what should it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul.
