ARCHITECT NUTTER

was discovered that the parapet wall was unsafe. The roof was so con-911/2 structed that a great quantity of ice was precipitated at the jail entrance at times. Reconstruction of the roof and rebuilding the parapet wall cost the sum of $2,000, but that had nothing to do with the original estimate. Another little matter attended to entirely outside of the original estimate was the rehabilitation of the chief constable's quarters. This was done at the direction of Engineer Talbot.

An Interruption.
"While the work was being carried successfully along, the county council took up the matter of joint buildings with the city. A proposition was made, but rejected by the city. While this matter was in abeyance, no further contracts were awarded. I had drawn up detailed plans and specifications, and was ready to proceed. The "work was stopped entirely in the fall of 1911, but was resumed the collowing spring, when all hope of an agreement on a joint building had been panished. About then I left the city's "As I have stated, the county author lies desired that an arrangement should be made to have me continue to take charge of the work, but this wish was not shared by Mayor Graham, who let the man who had been my assistant, a good draftsman, but not an experienced architect, take charge of the work. The building inspector was to assist him.

Money Was Sufficient. "It was then that the trouble started and I have no hesitation in saying that at least $10,000 has been squandered since then. When I was in charge the money did not give out, and I was not receiving a commission, as has been hinted, it was of no possible advantage to me to increase the cost of the oper-

Many Want "Little Fairies" in Homes

The foster home committee of the Children's Aid Society has for some time past been holding weekly meetings in order to overtake the large amount of work in connection with its duties in providing the young children vith foster homes. A largely-attended meeting was held in the city hall this morning, and a number of applications for children were received, scrutinized and disposed of. A pleasing feature was the reading of a number of communications from wards of the society at present in foster homes, and each one was gratifying. The present large number of children in the shelter in South London tion of securing additional help for the matron was discussed. The shelter home committee at a recent meeting passed several recommendations to the board for improvements and repairs to the building, and these changes were reported completed. At present the shelter home has more than the usual number of wards, and the society is making efforts to have as many as possible placed in foster homes immediately. Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor
