countless friends—this depends on how you interpret the word countless—has cabled back from London that Johnson has signed for a 20-round battle. Let us hope his word is better than his bond. Jack Johnson bonds are not quoted very high in the United States court at Chicago.

However, if Curiey puts over the match the public will forget his transgressions. And if Willard slips over the wallop that knocks the crown off the wooly dome of the Big Smoke he will be a greater hero than all the Sullivans, Corbetts and Fitzsimmonses of ring history. Speed the day.

But knowing Willard as well as we do we cannot feel any too elated. Unless Jess has improved wonderfully in the several months since we last saw him in action he's going to spend an interesting hour surrounded by a maze of boxing gloves.

teresting hour surrounded by a maze of boxing gloves.

We say hour because there is hardly a chance of Johnson stopping him. Even when good Jack would have found the cowboy a tough fellow who could take a lacing without dropping. Now if it is true that Johnson extended himself in the Frank Moran fight, which he Americans who saw it say he did the Americans who saw it say he did. it is likely that Willard will be on his feet at the end of the 20 rounds. If Johnson, doing his best, couldn't stop Moran, he can't stop Willard. That's sure. But Willard's mental capacity is in But Willard's mental capacity is in inverse ratio to his size and he is a giant, standing six foot six in ring togs. Unless his thinking apparatus has expanded since his last big fights the colored man, wreck though he may be, is going to outguess him at every turn. Willard has never shown the ability to decisively defeat anybody of class, although few of any class exist in his division.
