SATUR AY MORNING, DEC 1, 1887.

day at Manchester, expressed views on Mr. Gladstone's approaching scheme for electoral reform, which show what a variance there is presently likely to be in the Whig ranks on Lord Hartington, in his speech on Tuesthe subject.

It is probable that while Lord Harting ton, W. E. Forster, Sir William Harcourt and Mr. Goschen will view with the utmost repugnance and anxiety any extension of the franchise, which will include Ireland, Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Charles Dilke will maintain that Ireland has as much right to participate in the benefits of the reform as the rest of the kingdom, and that it is false to principle as well as to policy for the lib. erals to discriminate against the Irish Whatever course Mr. Gladstone takes un der such circumstances seems equally open to serious consequences. If he retuses to extend the franchise to Ireland he will render all alliance between himself and the Parnellites impossible, and this alliance saved his government from actual defeat or would be to court defeat on some question of home or foreign policy, or if the Parnell ites would refrain from going thus far it would be that the amusement of hampering the government at every turn had been sufficiently enter aining and pleasant to make the further, tep of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs ill advised.

If, on the other hand, Gladstone did extend the enlarged franchise to Ireland a series of most alarming consequences rises to view. The Parnellite strength would be almost doubled, and the moderate whigs would combine with the conservatives against Mr. Gladstone and the radicals. If the radicals combining with which sold at 88c.

The value of property in the city that has changed hands and been registered in the city registry office during the month of November is greater than that of any preceding month in the history of Toronto. This shows unmistakeably that Toronto real estate is considered the surest of investments and that while stocks of various kinds are falling in value real estate is steadily advancing.

One evening last week a burglary was committed in the house of a Mr. Leonard in Chicago. It was the most remarkable burglary on record. Joaquin Miller says that no one who admires the beautiful can be really bad. Mr. Leonard's burglar admired the beautiful-admired it in a unique way. Indeed he nearly lost his liberty through it. But what an escape justice had from being unjust! If Joaquin is right, this thief was not bad, but if he had been caught he would have got sixteen years. It happened this way: The thief, after getting in by the back window ransacked the house. In the room where Mr. and Mrs. Leonard were sleeping he got a gold watch and chain and some jewelry. Then he went to the bedroom occupied by the daughter of Mr. Leonard, a pretty, dark haired, rose lipped maiden of seventeen summers. Here he got some more jewelry. Alas! as he turned to leave the room, he stood a moment to gaze at the maiden on whose bright, peaceful face the dim light of the low gas jet came and went. The face looked as if it blushed upon the pillow. The rosy red lips of the sleeper were slightly parted, and the sighing thief caught a glimpse of the pearly gates beyond. He came closer and looked down lengingly. If Mr. Browning had been there to see he The Toronto News Company would have had material for three poems. Probably that burglar had never seen any-

Alas! Miss Leonard says that at first, when the kiss woke her, there was quite a perceptible oder of alcohol in the room.

A Modern Inferno. From the London Daily News In the early part of the present year spent two months in visiting the worst slums of London and investigating the conlition of the inhabitants. I not only went from cellar to attic, but I traced back the family history of many of the occupants. I followed the workers to their work, the thieves and wantons to their haunts, the children to their schools, and the homeless children to their schools, and the home loafers to the holes and corners, the open passages and backyards where they herded together at night. I began my task with a light heart; I finished it with a heavy one. that two months I saw a vision of hell ore terrible than the immortal Florenne's, and this was no poet's dream-it was terrible truth, ghastly in its reality heartbreaking in its intensity, and the doom of the imprisoned bodies in this

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—THE FARMERS' MARKET— The receipts of grain on the street to-day were small, without much change in prices. If the radicals combining with the Parnellites were then able to carry the measure, the battle is immediately transferred to the house of lords. Here Lord Salisbury would without doubt be able to have an amendment tacked on leaving Ireland out of the bill, and in that event, supposing Mr. Gladstone insisted on the integrity of the bill being maintained, an speal to the country would follow.

And an appeal to the country is about the last thing Mr. Gladstone wants at present.

Even here however the tale does not end, for if the appeal to the country was successful the fight will all be renewed again in
