

MAN, civilized and savage is an amphibious animal.

He digs his burrows and builds his houses or his cities on the river banks, the shores of inland lakes or the coast of the sea; if the Antarctic man exists he has violated this fundamental instinct by remaining inland, yet the explorers will look for him. Why not?

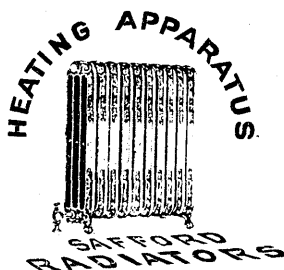

Conditions are the same in those governing existence in the northern regions, Esquimos live in a climate that would kill an ordinary Canadian—and they bear the stamp of mongolian origin.

If these people would migrate to this beautiful country—build houses and heat them with
